Analysis

Current Law: The Orphans' Court of Charles County consists of one chief judge and two associate judges. Each judge is elected to a four-year term. Orphans' court judges are required by the Maryland Constitution to be citizens of the State and residents, for the preceding 12 months, of the city or county in which they are elected. The salaries for orphans' court judges across the counties and Baltimore City are mostly set by statute, with some being left to the discretion of the county commission or council. Exhibit 1 lists the salaries for orphans' court judges for each county and the City of Baltimore with the exception of Harford and Montgomery counties where a circuit court judge sits as the orphans' court.

Background: An orphans' court is a probate court. Orphans' court judges are elected to serve four-year terms during the statewide election. Each county, other than Harford and Montgomery counties, has three judges sitting on its orphans' court. The chief judge of each county is appointed by the Governor. An orphans' court hears all contested matters regarding a decedent's estate, including validity of wills and legal questions involving transfers of property. It also supervises estates that are probated judicially, and approves accounts, awards of personal representatives' commissions, and attorneys' fees.

The Charles County Orphans' Court judges' salaries were last changed by Chapter 214 of 2001, which raised the judges' annual salaries from $6,365 to $7,000, effective January 1, 2003.

Local Expenditures: Salary increases would increase by $5,700 in fiscal 2007 accounting for seven months of salary and fringe benefits at 10% for all three judges, beginning with the next term of office. Beginning in fiscal 2008, annual salary expenditures would increase by $9,900.
