Analysis

Current Law: Applicants for a license must pass a personal written examination to determine the competence of the applicant as to life insurance, health insurance, or annuities, including contracts for nonprofit health service plans, vision plans, dental plan organizations, and HMOs, as well as the familiarity of the applicant with the applicable laws of the State. An applicant who fails an examination may not take another exam for at least 14 days after the date of the last examination failed, but there is no limit on the number of times an applicant may retake the examination. Prior to taking the examination, an applicant must take a prelicensing course.

Background: Neither MIA's Producer Licensing Section nor MIA's examination vendor (PSI) collect demographic data from test candidates. MIA indicates that if demographic data were collected by PSI, the vendor could produce the report required under the bill at no cost to the State. However, demographic data would have to be provided on a voluntary basis as MIA does not have statutory authority to collect such data. PSI previously collected similar data on a voluntary basis in other states, but found response rates to be low.

MIA selected PSI as its new examination vendor in June 2007, which resulted in new proprietary examinations created in consultation with an MIA review committee. Since that time, MIA has observed a noticeable decline in the pass rate for the examination, particularly among the life portion of the exam.

Applicants for a Maryland State Life, Accident/Health Producer license must take both the life, accident/health and general life accident/health portions of the examination. The examination fee is $70.
