A BILL ENTITLED

AN ACT concerning

Corrections – Isolated Confinement Study

FOR the purpose of requiring the Special Joint Commission on Public Safety and Security in State and Local Correctional Facilities to appoint an independent third party to conduct a certain review of correctional facilities relating to isolated confinement; requiring a correctional facility to provide access to all data necessary for the review to the independent third party; requiring the independent third party to develop certain recommendations; requiring the independent third party to submit an initial report on its findings and recommendations for a certain period to the Governor and the Special Joint Commission on or before a certain date; requiring the independent third party to submit follow-up reports on or before a certain date for a certain period of time; defining certain terms; providing for the termination of this Act; and generally relating to studying isolated confinement in correctional facilities.

Preamble

WHEREAS, The rate of isolated confinement in Maryland is approximately 8.5%, which is significantly higher than most other states; and

WHEREAS, A number of psychological experts and studies have demonstrated the profoundly deleterious effect on mental functioning associated with long-term isolated confinement caused by both the isolation and the severe restriction of environmental and social stimulation associated with it; and

WHEREAS, The United Nations Special Rapporteur on Torture has defined long-term confinement as 14 days or more; and

WHEREAS, Juveniles and those with serious mental illness are particularly vulnerable to the adverse psychological impact of isolated confinement, with cases resulting in self-mutilation and suicide, and United Nations treaties and conventions have consistently mandated that isolated confinement not be used on these vulnerable populations; and

WHEREAS, A number of states, including Maine, Mississippi, and Washington, have reduced their use of long–term isolated confinement by using alternative strategies and other best practices; and

WHEREAS, Reductions in the use of long–term isolated confinement have been shown to reduce overall prison violence and costs; and

WHEREAS, In the 2012 U.S. Senate hearing on federal use of isolated confinement, the American Bar Association (ABA) submitted testimony that isolated confinement should “be imposed in the most limited manner possible” and the ABA further advocated for an “investigation as to how the use of long–term solitary confinement may be restricted so as to promote the safe, efficient, and humane operation of prisons”; and

WHEREAS, While Maryland’s overall rate of use for isolated confinement is high, additional information is needed to better understand the landscape and the best approaches for reducing the usage rate; now, therefore,
