The bill also expands the scope of IIU to oversee and coordinate all of the intelligence efforts within DPSCS under the authority of the Secretary.

Analysis

Current Law/Background: Chapter 393 of 1999 established IIU as a separate agency within DPSCS. IIU's investigators were provided with the same authority, including arrest powers, as police officers on departmental property and, under certain circumstances, off site. IIU is charged with investigating all alleged criminal and professional misconduct violations committed by employees, as well as all criminal allegations made against inmates.

On April 23, 2013, a federal grand jury returned an indictment charging 25 individuals, including inmates and 13 correctional officers employed by DPSCS, with conspiring to run operations of the Black Guerilla Family (BGF) gang inside the Baltimore City Detention Center and related facilities. Charges included racketeering, drug distribution, money laundering, victim and witness retaliation, bribery, and extortion. According to the indictment, correctional officers helped leaders of the BGF smuggle cell phones, drugs, and other contraband into State correctional facilities.

To bolster departmental investigative capabilities, the Secretary transferred the functions of other DPSCS intelligence personnel to IIU. This bill codifies that action and complies with statutory requirements that the renaming of a unit within the department be codified at the next session of the General Assembly.

Since April 2013, through reorganization and expansion, IIU added 19 investigative positions, 13 intelligence positions, and 3 support staff positions. Five of the intelligence positions had already existed in DPSCS Security Operations prior to the expansion of the unit. The added positions effectively doubled the size of IIU.
