Applicants, Licensees, Certificate Holders, and Trainees

This bill requires the State Board of Professional Counselors and Therapists, in specified situations, to require an applicant, licensee, certificate holder, or trainee to submit to a competency examination. The board must pay the reasonable cost of any required competency examination for a licensee, certificate holder, or trainee. However, an applicant must pay the reasonable cost of any examination required of the applicant.

Fiscal Summary

Local Effect: None.

Small Business Effect: Minimal.

Analysis

Bill Summary: The board must require a mental health or physical examination by a health care practitioner if, while reviewing an application for licensure, certification, or trainee status or investigating an allegation against a licensee, certificate holder, or trainee, the board finds reasonable evidence that the individual may cause harm to a person.

In return for the privilege to practice counseling and therapy in the State, an applicant, licensee, or certificate holder is deemed to have consented to an examination and waived any claim to the examination report or testimony (which is confidential except for contested case proceedings) of the health care practitioner who examines the individual. The same applies to trainees who practice clinical alcohol and drug counseling in the State without a license or certification.

The failure or refusal of an applicant, a licensee, a certificate holder, or a trainee to submit to a competency examination is sufficient evidence of the individual's inability to practice competently unless the board finds the failure or refusal was beyond the individual's control.

Current Law: A number of health occupations boards have the authority to require a licensee to submit to a competency examination (including Acupuncture, Audiologists, Hearing Aid Dispensers, and Speech-Language Pathologists, Optometry, Pharmacy, Physical Therapy, Podiatric, Psychologists, and Social Work). However, these boards are authorized to require the examinations only while investigating an allegation against a licensee and typically only if the board has reason to believe that the licensee may cause harm to a person. Three health occupations boards (Morticians and Funeral Directors, the Nursing, and Physicians) as well as the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners are additionally authorized to require an applicant for licensure to submit to an examination. (In the case of the State Board of Nursing, a competency examination for licensees and applicants must be undertaken, rather than may be required.)

In most instances, the respective board rather than the licensee (or applicant) is required to pay the cost of the examination. However, the State Board of Morticians and Funeral Directors requires an applicant to pay for the examination but must reimburse an applicant who is deemed competent after examination.
