Analysis

Current Law/Background: The federal Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), formerly known as the Food Stamp Program, provides benefits solely for the purchase of food items to families and individuals who meet income and resource requirements. Benefits are 100% federally funded, while administrative costs are split equally between the State and federal government. Program rules and regulations are issued by the federal government.

State Expenditures: General fund expenditures increase by $2,147,499 in fiscal 2017, which accounts for the bill's October 1, 2016 effective date. This estimate reflects the cost to provide a supplemental State benefit to ensure that all households that include an individual who is at least age 62 receive a minimum benefit of $30 per month. The information and assumptions used in calculating the estimate are stated below:

- the average monthly caseload for SNAP in fiscal 2016 was 406,209 households;
- 44,201 households (10.9%) receive $30 or less per month in federal benefits;
- of these households, 17,999 households include an individual who is at least age 62;
- DHR provides a State supplement to those 17,999 households to ensure a minimum benefit of $30 per month; and
- based on existing caseload data and benefit amounts, this supplement costs $238,611 per month and $2,863,332 on an annual basis.

The fiscal 2017 budget designates $1.0 million from the State Reserve Fund to provide funds to support a State supplement to the Food Supplement Program. Future year expenditures reflect annualization and assume that caseload trends remain constant.
