Natalie M. LaPrade Medical Cannabis Commission - Medical Cannabis Grower Licenses - Review of Applications

This emergency bill increases the number of medical cannabis growers that the Natalie M. LaPrade Medical Cannabis Commission is authorized to license from 15 to 20 – until June 1, 2018, when the cap may be lifted. The commission must review the previously submitted applications for a medical cannabis grower license that were submitted in accordance with required procedures (regardless of whether the application was ranked or scored by the Regional Economic Studies Institute (RESI)) and then award Stage One pre-approval to at least one applicant located in Southern Maryland. However, any such applicant awarded Stage One pre-approval still has to meet the commission’s standards for licensure.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: Likely no effect in FY 2017. Special fund revenues for the commission increase by $645,000 in FY 2018 from application and licensing fees for the additional licensed growers. Future years reflect annual grower license fees. The commission can issue the additional grower licenses with existing budgeted resources.

(in dollars)	FY 2018	FY 2019	FY 2020	FY 2021	FY 2022
SF Revenue	$645,000	$625,000	$625,000	$625,000	$625,000

Local Effect: None.

Small Business Effect: Potential meaningful.

Analysis

Current Law/Background: Chapter 403 of 2013 established, Chapters 240 and 256 of 2014 expanded, and Chapter 251 of 2015 and Chapter 474 of 2016 further modified the State’s medical cannabis program. The Natalie M. LaPrade Medical Cannabis Commission currently allows for the licensure of growers, processors, and dispensaries and the registration of their agents. The program also establishes a framework to certify physicians, qualifying patients (including veterans), and their caregivers to provide qualifying patients with medical cannabis legally under State law via written certification. Effective June 1, 2017, dentists, podiatrists, nurse practitioners, and nurse midwives are authorized to be “certifying providers” – along with physicians – under the medical cannabis program. Specifically, a qualifying patient who has been provided with a written certification from an authorized certifying health care provider in accordance with a bona fide provider-patient relationship may obtain a 30-day supply of medical cannabis. Medical cannabis is defined in regulation as any product containing usable cannabis or medical cannabis finished product. A 30-day supply is defined as 120 grams of usable cannabis, unless a qualifying patient’s certifying physician determines that this amount is inadequate to meet the medical needs of the patient. Regulations establish posttraumatic stress disorder as one of several debilitating medical conditions.

Statute dictates that medical cannabis may only be obtained from a grower or dispensary licensed by the commission and that the commission may license no more than 15 growers initially. However, beginning June 1, 2018, the commission may issue the number of grower licenses necessary to meet demand for medical cannabis by qualifying patients and caregivers in an affordable, accessible, secure, and efficient manner. Section 13-3306 of the Health-General Article requires the commission to “actively seek to achieve racial, ethnic, and geographic diversity when licensing medical cannabis growers” and to “encourage applicants who qualify as a minority business enterprise.”

The commission is authorized to set fees to cover its operating costs; these fees were established by regulations promulgated in September 2015. Grower application fees are paid in two stages: Stage One is $2,000 and Stage Two is $4,000. There is also an annual license fee of $125,000. Dispensary application fees are also paid in two stages: Stage One is $1,000 and Stage Two is $4,000. There is also an annual license fee of $40,000. An individual may apply for a grower-dispensary license with the applicable fee structure simply being a combination of grower and dispensary fees. The number of growers is still capped at 15 even if some licenses are combined grower-dispensary licenses.

The commission opened applications for grower, processor, and dispensary licenses in September 2015. The application forms included instructions and a description of the scoring process for evaluating the applications. The commission received 145 grower applications, 124 processor applications, and 811 dispensary license applications. Towson University's RESI was commissioned to review the grower and processor applications through a double-blind review process in which all identifying information was redacted. The scoring system contained six main categories, including additional factors, which stated that, for scoring purposes, the commission may take into account the geographic location of the growing operation to ensure there is geographic diversity in the award of licenses. In August 2016, the commission announced the 15 growers and 15 processors who were awarded Stage One license pre-approvals. The evaluation procedures to be used in the award of dispensary licenses were adopted by the commission in November 2016.

Geographic diversity became an issue when two companies among the top 15 ranked growers did not receive pre-approval after being replaced by other companies in order to provide geographic representation throughout the State. Although the applications did not require applicants to include information related to location, in June 2016, the commission subsequently asked applicants for the locations of their prospective operations. In July 2016, a subcommittee of the commission unanimously voted to preliminarily approve the top 15 growers based on RESI's scoring, which did not include a consideration of location. Afterward, three members of the subcommittee reversed their vote, which resulted in two lower-ranked firms being moved into the top 15 growers in order to achieve geographic diversity. The two companies that were initially included in the top 15 growers but later removed are suing the commission, claiming that the determination of how geographic diversity was to be considered was unclear to applicants.

State Revenues: Even though the commission must award at least one additional Stage One pre-approval from among the existing applications submitted, this analysis assumes that it likely takes two to three months to complete the review and make the award. Thus, revenues from additional fees that must be collected are likely realized in July 2017. Accordingly, special fund revenues increase by an estimated $645,000 in fiscal 2018 and by $625,000 annually thereafter. If able to make the awards sooner, then this revenue is accelerated into fiscal 2017. The Department of Legislative Services (DLS) also notes that some portion of this revenue increase may have been realized under current law because the 15-grower limit may be lifted June 1, 2018, to meet demand. However, the timing and specific amount of any potential future increase in growers under current law is uncertain because it depends on patient demand and the commission's determination.

Special fund revenues attributable to grower license fees total $645,000 in fiscal 2018 (five applicants paying the $4,000 application fee at Stage Two and five paying the first-year license fee of $125,000 when approved) and $625,000 annually thereafter (five growers paying the annual licensing fee of $125,000). This estimate assumes that the commission uses its authority to select as many as five additional growers (at least one of which must be located in Southern Maryland) and does so, for all five, from the pool of applicants that have already submitted applications and the Stage One application fee. As such, this estimate does not include any additional special fund revenues from Stage One application fees.

Special fund revenues attributable to grower agent registration fees also increase, but DLS does not have a reliable estimate for the number of grower agents hired by each licensed grower. Growers pay a $200 registration fee for each agent. Previously the commission has advised that, although regulations require grower agent identification cards to be renewed every two years, the commission only plans to charge the fee initially.

Small Business Effect: Meaningful to the extent that a small business is able to obtain a grower license sooner than it otherwise would under the bill's provisions. However, it is unknown whether any of the applicants (within the pool that has already submitted an application) are small businesses.
