Financial Institutions – Nondepository Special Fund – Expansion

This departmental bill requires licensing, investigation, and examination fees for certain nondepository financial institutions (collection agencies, consumer lenders, installment lenders, sales finance companies, mortgage lenders, check cashing services, and credit services businesses) to be deposited into the Nondepository Special Fund, rather than the general fund. No changes to any licensing or other fees occur from this change. Fines and penalties collected by the Office of the Commissioner of Financial Regulation (OCFR) continue to be paid into the general fund. The bill also expands the purpose of the fund to encompass covering the costs of (1) activities related to the new revenues and (2) other functions that have been funded through the general fund. The bill takes effect June 1, 2018.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: General fund revenues decrease and special fund revenues increase by approximately $74,000 in FY 2018 and $1.04 million annually thereafter. General fund expenditures decrease by $1.26 million in FY 2019, contingent upon enactment of the bill, and a similar amount annually thereafter, resulting in a net benefit to the general fund of $214,400 a year beginning in FY 2019. As of FY 2019, special fund expenditures increase correspondingly. The accrued fund balance in the Nondepository Special Fund can cover the gap between new revenues and expenditures for that fund.

Local Effect: None.

Small Business Effect: The Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation (DLLR) has determined that this bill has minimal or no impact on small business (attached). The Department of Legislative Services (DLS) concurs with this assessment. (The attached assessment does not reflect amendments to the bill.)

Analysis

Current Law/Background: The Nondepository Special Fund was created by Chapter 341 of 2016, which consolidated three existing special funds (the Mortgage Originators Special Fund, Debt Management Special Fund, and the Money Transmission Special Fund) into the new Nondepository Special Fund. However, licensing, investigation, and examination fees – as well as fines and penalties – for the nondepository entities affected by the bill are credited to the general fund.

According to OCFR, requiring all revenues (other than fines and penalties) to be credited to the Nondepository Special Fund allows the commissioner to fully and more efficiently budget for OCFR's resource needs. OCFR advises that this change eliminates unnecessary administrative burdens through the elimination of the preparation, monitoring, and reconciliation of multiple budgets.

OCFR further advises that many other financial regulators at both the federal and state levels are directly funded through assessments and/or licensing fees deposited into dedicated accounts. For instance, operational budgets for the U.S. Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, National Credit Union Administration, and state regulators in Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Montana, Oregon, and Washington are all funded through assessments and/or licensing fees.

Office of the Commissioner of Financial Regulation

OCFR, under DLLR, supervises the activities of the financial services industry in Maryland through periodic on-site examinations and off-site monitoring programs. OCFR ensures that the citizens of Maryland are able to conduct their financial transactions through safe, sound, and well-managed institutions that comply with Maryland law, while providing a flexible, yet sound regulatory environment that promotes fair competition, encourages innovative business development, and supports the economy of Maryland.

OCFR is responsible for chartering and supervising Maryland trust companies, State-chartered banks, and State-chartered credit unions; licensing and supervising State-licensed financial entities, including mortgage lenders, mortgage brokers, mortgage servicers, mortgage loan originators, affiliated insurance producer-originators, check cashers, money transmitters, consumer debt collection agencies, consumer lenders, installment lenders, sales finance businesses, credit services businesses, and debt management companies; and registering and supervising credit reporting agencies and debt settlement companies, to ensure compliance with the laws and regulations of Maryland.

OCFR provides assistance to consumers by investigating complaints of questionable business practices involving State-chartered, licensed, and registered financial institutions under its supervision and authority. OCFR also conducts outreach focused on foreclosure and mortgage delinquencies in the State. Additionally, OCFR helps to connect Maryland consumers to effective financial education available through the State and nationally.

State Fiscal Effect: Given its June 1, 2018 effective date, the bill has an impact on both general fund and special fund revenues in fiscal 2018; OCFR advises that affected revenues for that month total approximately $74,000. Thus, general fund revenues decrease by $74,000 in fiscal 2018, and special fund revenues for the Nondepository Special Fund increase correspondingly. The $74,000 is assumed to be carried forward as special fund balance to fiscal 2019 and subsequent years, as this analysis assumes that general fund and special fund expenditures are not affected in fiscal 2018.

OCFR further advises that, beginning in fiscal 2019, general fund revenues decrease by approximately $1.04 million annually; this estimate is based on a five-year average of licensing fees paid into the general fund. Special fund revenues for OCFR increase correspondingly beginning in fiscal 2019.

The budget for fiscal 2019 specifies that the general fund appropriation for OCFR be reduced by approximately $1.26 million, contingent upon enactment of the bill. The budget authorizes use of special fund revenues to replace the general fund appropriation. Thus, this analysis assumes that general fund expenditures decrease by about $1.26 million annually beginning in fiscal 2019, while special fund expenditures for OCFR increase by the same amount to maintain current services. This analysis further assumes that the general fund working allowance in place for fiscal 2018 does not change under the bill, despite the June effective date.

As a result of the bill's funding shift, the general fund is expected to realize net savings while the Nondepository Special Fund is expected to realize net costs. DLS advises that new special fund revenues received under the bill may not be sufficient to cover anticipated ongoing expenditures in some (or all) years. Based on OCFR's revenue estimates and the fiscal 2019 budget, the estimated shortfall between new special fund revenues and new special fund expenditures is about $214,400 annually. If actual special fund revenues received as a result of the bill are not sufficient to cover special fund expenditures to maintain services currently paid for with general funds, then the accrued balance of the Nondepository Special Fund is sufficient to cover the shortfall.

In fiscal 2019, OCFR advises that the Nondepository Special Fund is expected to carry forward a balance of approximately $8.46 million. That amount, coupled with the $74,000 expected to be added to the fund balance due to this bill, is more than sufficient to cover the estimated $214,400 annual gap between current appropriations and expected revenues. In any year in which special fund revenues instead exceed special fund expenditures, that surplus is carried forward as part of the overall fund balance into the next fiscal year and is available for future shortfalls.

Exhibit 1 shows revenues and expenditures as anticipated by OCFR for the Nondepository Special Fund under current law and under the bill; the exhibit reflects the $74,000 in revenues received in June 2018 as being carried forward as part of the special fund balance for use in subsequent years. As OCFR does not account for any fluctuation in revenues or growth in affected expenditures, the exhibit does not either. OCFR advises that, under current law, general fund appropriations are used only for salaries and fringe benefits; however, those funds are only applied to a portion of salaries and benefits for 54 employees in OCFR. For purposes of this analysis, DLS assumes that, under the bill, those positions are reclassified as being funded entirely by special funds.
