	oyster shells is to provide a greater incentive for people and corporations to recycle their shells and increase the amount of shell available for replanting purposes. Recycled oyster shells are used as setting material for new spat (baby oysters) to be planted back into the Chesapeake and Coastal Bays. Each recycled shell can become home to 10 new oysters as new oysters prefer to attach and grow onto other oyster shells. A healthy oyster reef filters the Chesapeake Bay's waters and provides habitat for an underwater community that furnishes life support for blue crabs and fish. This action aims to incentivize recycling oyster shells by individuals and businesses in order to increase the availability of oyster shell for restoration purposes.

	some local school systems are planning to establish early college public school programs in which a student will be dually enrolled in the public school and an institution of higher education (IHE). Unlike most other dual enrollment programs in which the student takes courses at both the high school and the IHE, this dually enrolled student will attend the public school early college program full time and will take all his/her courses in that program. The student's full time enrollment in the public school early college program raised questions about full FTE State Aid payment to the local school system for that student. Specifically, under COMAR 13A.02.06.03, the Maryland State Department of Education required a school system to show that a dually enrolled student was taking at least one course at the public high school in order to receive a full FTE State Aid payment for that student. If no change is made to the regulations to allow full FTE State Aid Payment for such dually enrolled students, the development of robust public school early college programs would be restrained for lack of resources to do so. This would contrary to the intent of SB740. Local school systems must begin their planning now if such programs are to come to fruition in the 2014-2015 school year. Both MSDE and the LEAs interested in establishing these public school early college programs believe they will be of high value to students and in line with the intent and purpose of SB740. This amendment to the State Aid regulations will open the door to their development.

Having the tagging rules effective in July gives the licensees the opportunity to learn about the requirements when they renew their license and then gives them time to order tags from the department or have their own tags printed. The purpose of this action is to increase tagging flexibility. Beginning in 2011, the department responded to new requirements from the Food and Drug Administration/National Shellfish Sanitation Program's shellstock identification and traceability mandate by implementing regulations requiring that bushels of oysters be tagged. By allowing some flexibility in tagging the department is trying to prevent a tag shortage, conserve resources, prevent inconveniences to the watermen, and ensure that oystermen have an opportunity to fish.		Emergency status beginning July 19, 2013, and expiring January 15, 2014.

	The proposed action allows all harvesters that are also certified by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene to utilize a dealer tag that meets the requirements stipulated in the National Shellfish Sanitation Program Model Ordinance in lieu of a department-issued harvester tag. The proposed action also makes it clear that an individual must use a wild oyster tag to tag a container of wild oysters and a farm raised tag to tag a container of farm raised oysters. This was implied because the regulation only allows one type of tag on board, but the added statements make it clear. For the wild oyster fishery, the proposed action allows harvesters to utilize a tag that meets the requirements stipulated in the National Shellfish Sanitation Program Model Ordinance in lieu of a department issued harvester tag. The specifications for the information that must be included on the tag are specified in the proposal. Watermen may make their own tags with the specified information rather than obtaining tags from the department. If a waterman prefers to get tags from the department (license service center) there will be a charge (fee) for the tags and possibly a delay in receiving the tags due to unavailability of stock.
