Marylanders Against Poverty (MAP) strongly supports HB 1081, which establishes reasonable protections for low-income and working Marylanders against destitution as a result of medical debt, and creates reporting requirements to identify disparities in hospital collection processes and procedures.

For many Marylanders, an illness or medical emergency can lead to financial suffering, poverty and homelessness. Even after passage of the Affordable Care Act, medical bills frequently cause financial hardship and even destitution.^{1,2} One need look no further than GoFundMe, which proclaims itself to be “the leader in online medical fundraising” with over 250,000 campaigns a year.³ In Maryland, people are pushed into poverty and out of their homes as a result of medical debt. Lawsuits filed by Maryland hospitals against former patients for medical bills – some of which should have been paid by insurance companies – have led to wage and property garnishments that have pushed vulnerable Marylanders into poverty, at the same time that these hospitals saw billions in profits.

HB 1081 would help to protect poor and working Marylanders against destitution as a result of medical debt. The bill would prevent homelessness and poverty by prohibiting hospitals from placing a lien on a patient’s home, pursuing wage garnishment to collect medical debt from patients who are uninsured, or filing lawsuits to collect low-value debts that are often adjudicated in small claims court, where patients have fewer protections. HB 1081 would help to ensure that insurance companies are pushed to pay for covered procedures – rather than pushing the costs to patients – by preventing hospitals from initiating medical debt collections lawsuits while health insurance appeals, applications for financial assistance, or requests to reconsider financial appeals are pending.

HB 1081 balances the needs of hospitals and patients, requiring hospitals to offer patients monthly payment plans that limit payments to five percent of gross monthly income and cap interest rates at 1.5% per year.

HB 1081 creates transparency in hospital procedures that may have a disparate impact by race, ethnicity, gender, or geography.

An illness or health emergency should not lead to financial ruin. MAP appreciates your consideration, and strongly urges a favorable report on HB 1081.

Marylanders Against Poverty (MAP) is a coalition of service providers, faith communities, and advocacy organizations advancing statewide public policies and programs necessary to alleviate the burdens faced by Marylanders living in or near poverty, and to address the underlying systemic causes of poverty.
