

Parents have become aware of the incremental usurpation of their rights and authority to advocate for their children within the school system. This bill gives parenting back to parents, as it should be.

This bill will provide this and more:

Parents must retain the right to direct the care of their children while they are attending school including all of the information which the children are exposed, medical treatment or intervention and mental healthcare they are given.

Parents are tax paying citizens and have the right to engage in complete participation in the development and implementation of public school programs and curricula.

Parents have the fundamental right to direct and refuse any medical treatments or interventions which might be administered to students in school settings.
