February 21, 2024

TO: Members of the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee
FROM: Nina Themelis, Director of Mayor's Office of Government Relations
RE: Senate Bill 848 - Enoch Pratt Free Library Capital Project Funding

POSITION: SUPPORT

Chair Guzzone, Vice Chair Rosapepe, and members of the Committee, please be advised that the Baltimore City Administration (BCA) supports Senate Bill (SB) 848.

The Enoch Pratt Free Library (the Pratt) is one of Baltimore's most trusted institutions. The library breaks down the barriers for our community, connecting people with information, services, and opportunities to help them meet their goals. However, the Pratt has reached a crossroads when it comes to infrastructure. The library has some of the oldest buildings in the state, with 6 libraries over 100 years old. Only two Pratt Library buildings were built this century. A recent building assessment by an outside vendor found the total cost to stabilize Pratt Library infrastructure is $197,300,000. Those improvements include structural upgrades and repairs to ensure long-term integrity of buildings, replacing antiquated systems with energy-efficient new technology, modernization of public spaces to improve user experience, and more.

These critical infrastructure needs are taking their toll on our city. The Pratt's Northwood branch is one example of a building with high usage, but significant structural deficiencies. The branch serves a community that is predominantly African American. Nearly 20% of that community face economic insecurity and more than 18% lack digital access. But last Fiscal Year, the Northwood branch was forced to close for 58 days due to deteriorating building conditions. That means for 20% of the year, that community could not access free internet, free resources, free tutoring, free after school programs for kids, free legal help, free social work, and more. A recent Facility Condition Report of the branch found every piece of the building - from the roof, to the walls, to the HVAC system - to be either in a critical state, potentially critical, or in need of replacement. For years, library officials have taken measures to try and alleviate building issues, such as installing temporary cooling units. However, without critical intervention, the Northwood branch will close permanently. Northwood is just one of many branches in need of critical repairs.

SB 848 could be a game changer for the Pratt Library. An infusion of state funding would help maintain infrastructure, functionality, and sustainability of library buildings. It will help the library leverage private dollars that can also be used to improve customer experience. And most importantly, it will help ensure that future generations have access to the vital resources of our public library.

For the above reasons, the BCA respectfully requests a favorable report on SB 848.

Budget and Taxation Committee
Senator Guy Guzzone, Chair
Sent via email

SUPPORT: Senate Bill 848: Enoch Pratt Free Library Capital Project Funding

Dear Chair Guzzone, Vice Chair Rosapepe, and distinguished members of the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee,

I am writing in support of Senate Bill 848: Enoch Pratt Free Library Capital Project Funding sponsored by Senator Mary Washington. The Enoch Pratt Free Library is widely acknowledged as an essential and valued institution within the city of Baltimore and state of Maryland. The Pratt is also one of the most innovative libraries in the country, adapting traditional services to meet the growing needs of our community.

However, the vital work the library is doing is hampered by aging infrastructure that has reached a critical point. The Pratt has some of the oldest library buildings in the state, and deferred maintenance due to lack of funding is leading to more building closures and emergency repairs that are having a negative impact on our community and my constituents.

In my district, the Hamilton branch library first opened in 1959. Six decades later, the Hamilton branch has never had a major renovation. There's critical problems with the envelope of the library, with significant water intrusion. The Hamilton library is a safe haven for the children in my community, with dozens of them flooding through the doors the second school lets out. Without additional funding, this building will inevitably require an increasing number of closures, leaving children with no place to go.

We're already seeing that impact at the other branch in my district, the Northwood library. Due to failing infrastructure, in Fiscal Year 2023 the Northwood branch was closed for 58 days. That's 20% of the year! Library staff have done what they can to keep the building cool in the summer. However, the cooling tower in the Northwood branch is original to the 1960 building. A recent building assessment found major structural deficiencies in the building, making it fiscally irresponsible to simply repair the HVAC.

Both the Northwood and Hamilton communities deserve libraries that can provide the vital services our neighbors need. Pratt Library leaders are looking for innovative solutions to improve the sustainability of the entire library system. However, that requires investment from the state, city, and private donors. Senate Bill 848 would help the library make strides towards a comprehensive capital improvement plan and ensure access to the library for generations to come.

Sincerely,

Dear Chair Guzzone, Vice Chair Rosapepe, and distinguished members of the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee,

We are writing in support of Senate Bill 848: Enoch Pratt Free Library Capital Project Funding sponsored by Senator Mary Washington. With 22 locations across Baltimore, the Pratt Library is a vital community resource, as evidenced by the recent compliment cards submitted by customers:

“Thank you for the professionalism, the courtesy, the availability...exemplary community service!”
Pratt Library Northwood Branch customer

“Ms. Sandra was exceptional in serving us, getting us new library cards, and helping my autistic adult sons with renewals of their cards..... My 10-year old son said this was a good day today.”
Pratt Library Northwood Branch customer

“I visited today and was amazed that there was a tutor here! I had my granddaughter with me and she really needed help.”
Pratt Library Northwood Branch customer

Each of these customers received library services at the Pratt’s Northwood branch which serves the communities of Hillen, Original Northwood, New Northwood, Ednor Gardens, Montebello, and Morgan State University. But deteriorating infrastructure conditions forced the library in Northwood to close for 58 days last Fiscal Year. That means for 20% of the year, that community was left without a place to access free internet, free tutors, a safe space, friendly faces, new technology, after school programs, and more. A recent Facility Condition Report of the Northwood branch conducted by an outside vendor found every piece of the building from the roof, to the walls, to the HVAC system to be either in a critical state, potentially critical, or in need of replacement.

Unfortunately, this is a widespread issue across the Pratt Library system, which has some of the oldest libraries in the state with only two built this century. A recent building assessment found that the total cost to stabilize Pratt Library infrastructure is $197,300,000. Those improvements include structural upgrades and repairs to ensure long-term integrity of buildings, replacing antiquated systems with energy-efficient new technology, modernization of public spaces to improve user experience, and more.

ENOCH PRATT
free LIBRARY

Pratt Library leaders have been innovative in trying to continue serving our community. Private funding has been raised to refresh several library spaces. The Pratt is engaged in a new library model with public-private partnerships in several communities. The Library secured American Rescue Plan funding to replace HVAC systems in several branches. And pop-up libraries have been established in partner spaces to serve neighborhoods when libraries close. However, an infusion of funding is needed so the library can continue to meet the vital needs of customers.

The funding provided in Senate Bill 848 will help the library make major strides towards modernization of the Pratt infrastructure. The bill also requires a 10% match of funds from the Pratt Library Board of Trustees. We are committed to that match as an investment in the future of the Enoch Pratt Free Library. Together, we can ensure that the doors of our libraries stay open for generations to come. We respectfully ask for your support of Senate Bill 848.

To: The United States Senate

Dear Senator Cardin and Van Hollen,

My name is Barellie Thompson. I have been a patron of Enoch Pratt Library since I was in the 8th grade at Winston Middle School in Northeast Baltimore. My father would bring me to the Northwood Branch on Loch Raven Boulevard and Coldspring Avenue where I would spend hours checking out the library's selection of comic book and teen fiction like Harry Potter and Percy Jackson. I was a kid who gravitated towards reading from a young age and had it not been for the free resources provided by Enoch Pratt, I may not have gotten as much exposure to literature as I have.

It is with this background that I feel the impact that funding, or lack thereof, has had on this neighborhood library. In previous years, including last summer in 2023, Northwood has been a nearly unbearable place to be due to an air conditioning system that is not working. Library staff have had to work half days before going to other locations or had to endure with the slight relief provided by fans and dehumidifiers. Patrons, especially our elderly population, have been reluctant to come to Northwood during the hot months to attend programming or utilize its resources, likely preferring to stay home. With everything else that has impacted this library, such as closing due to COVID and the loss of a nearby school, it would be unfortunate if funding becomes another detriment that gets added to the list.

It is my sincere wish that you all take the time to see the importance of supporting the funding of Enoch Pratt Libraries to continue the growth and maintenance of one of Baltimore City's most impactful resources.

Sincerely,

Barellie E. Thompson

Hello:

The Northwood Branch of the Enoch Pratt Free Library offers a comfortable and safe environment. Located conveniently from where I live. Everyone is extremely kind, encouraging and helpful. They are very informative and interested in my well-being: socially and literal.

This branch has made me (an introvert) open-up and allow myself to become involved with their many activities, for me "the Book Club", where I can listen to others thoughts and opinions is enjoyable. My husband loves going to the library. He's so much smarter than I am!

It's good to see children on the computers which seem to be readily available.

The branch had a "coat give-away which was a wonderful thing to do for others and the community!

I am a lifetime customer!!

Thank you for being there...

Dear Senators Cardin and Van Hollen,

My name is Alecia L. Dean and I am writing to say how the Northwood Branch of the Enoch Pratt Free Library has been instrumental in helping me become computer literate, thanks to wonderful computer instructors like Ms. Brenda Dudley.

The free instruction I received on the Microsoft Word Office Suite helps me prepare for a new job since I got laid off at my last position.

The Northwood Branch also offers exciting programs like line dancing, painting, and many other fun activities, all for free.

Therefore, I am pleading for the U. S. Senate to please provide funding for air conditioning and other much needed repairs to a library that is aging and needs to be modernized.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

I am writing a love letter to the Enoch Pratt Free Library. On this Valentine's Day, I call attention to the fact that each library branch is the beating heart of the neighborhood it serves. I've lived within walking distance of the Northwood Branch for over 40 years. It's where my children learned to love reading. It's where I visit at least weekly to satisfy my yearning for new reading material. It's where I meet up with other patrons in book clubs.

As a leader in the Hillen Road Improvement Association, I speak for the community in appreciation of the library's welcome hosting of our monthly neighborhood meetings. For the second year in a row, we are planning a community Plant and Seed Exchange at the library in June. It is events like this that bring neighbors together and provide an environmental education forum.

After school, youngsters gather to do homework and receive tutoring in a safe space. Children participate in story times and hands-on activities.

The Northwood Library is the only branch I know that offers free parking for patrons. Ms. Whitaker has worked with the community to establish a popular seed bank at the library.

I could go on and on about the importance of the Pratt (and especially the Northwood Branch) to our community. But, I'll close by saying that I even made loving use of the clever cut-out valentines provided in the Compass newsletter.

Thank you, Pratt Libraries!

Dear EPFL,

I write this letter because I strongly support the Enoch Pratt Free Library in our Baltimore Northwood community.

As a retired Maryland public school teacher, I have been living in Northwood/Idlewood for almost thirty years. I moved here with my family after my teaching in West Africa. One of the first things my children and I did upon our return to the USA was apply for EPFL library cards. I then enrolled them in the EPFL computer program that was being led by a volunteer. EPFL Northwood has been a solid resource for city children and teachers like us. While teaching, I encouraged my students to get library cards, participate in Summer Break events, and discover the world of reading for pleasure. My teaching team would even walk them to the library. Also, I could rely upon Northwood librarians to supply me with resources when available. Now that I'm retired, EPFL Northwood is a lifelong learning destination.

However, the Northwood EPFL site has not been maintained. The superior staff remain dedicated to serving the community, but the government has not funded resources to support them. The beautiful mid-century building needs renovation—most especially HVAC. A temporary bandage of installed air blowers that sounded like airplanes and didn't cool air was an insult to the staff and readers. In fact, one of our monthly community groups stopped, largely because the conditions became unbearable for participants, especially the older ones. Truly, our hearts went out to the librarians and staff who were supposed to be content with this fiasco.

As a Maryland taxpayer and homeowner, I see EPFL Northwood as a tremendous asset to living where I do. It was built about the time I was born. It is now time to invest in the future of our community by improving this facility.

Sincerely,

Lynda Anozie

Letter of support for Senate Bill 848: Capital Project Funding. This letter specifically supports the Northwood Branch of Enoch Pratt Free Library.

I have been writing and studying at the Northwood Branch of the Enoch Pratt Free Library since I retired from my teaching position at Loyola University Maryland in 2017. Mr. Johnson was the director when I started coming here regularly. He was always exceptionally helpful and invited me to do a presentation on my children's book ASHANTI TO ZULU: AFRICAN TRADITIONS. I truly enjoyed making the evening presentation to children, parents and seniors. We had a lovely discussion about Africa and African Art. After this presentation Mr. Johnson invited me to make a presentation about Kente cloth and my children's book SPIDER WEAVER: A LEGEND OF KENTE CLOTH at his daughter's private school. The staff at this particular branch are easy to get to know and always eager to help anyone who comes here.

I loved my computer classes, especially senior tech at this branch. The teachers were patient experienced professionals, and the classes were always fun. I took senior tech, the gmail basics class and google workspace. I enjoyed the classes so much that I took them more than once! These classes are invaluable for seniors and retired folks, many of whom are still trying to catch up with technology or do not have a computer at home. We can always make copies or type a letter here for free. The staff like Mr. Johnson, or Ms. Brenda or Ms. Whitaker are always willing and able to help with the computers or a search for something specific.

This library branch gives me a quiet place with all the technology, help and information that I need to write or research with ease and comfort. It is an invaluable resource for this community. This branch and all of our library branches should be fully supported and funded by our tax dollars. Thank you for your consideration.

RE: Bill 848: Capital Project Funding

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen of the Maryland State Senate, February 13, 2024

I am writing on behalf of the Northwood Branch of the Enoch Pratt Library in support of the above-mentioned Bill 848.

I have been attending a 12-Step Recovery Group in the meeting room of that Branch since August of 2023 and have found this to be a wonderful situation.

Ny'ilah Whitaker, the Branch Manager, and her staff, were very helpful in helping our group get started there, and have been more than cooperative every time we meet, which is on a weekly basis. They are always friendly and welcoming.

It seems to be a vibrant part of the community and is always being used by a good number of people. I understand that there are several programs throughout the week that are very helpful to the local neighborhood.

Please take into consideration the usefulness of this Branch and the need for the availability of this valuable community resource.

Hello, My name is Melvatta Benjamin. I am a senior and I take computer classes at the Northwood library in Baltimore City. The classes I have taken at this library have help me tremendously. I have applied this knowledge to my job. Many people was amaze at the level of my understanding of the computer.

I also like the many activities the library have provided. The staff is wonderful and very friendly. Ms. Dubbley is a wonderful teacher. she is very patience with the class. Sometime the class is very warm. We were told there wasn't any air condition in the room. I believe that is unfair. Please send extra funds to this library. This Library could use it. Thank you,

Dear Chair Guzzone, Vice Chair Rosapepe and Members of the Committee,

I am a patron of the Northwood Branch of the Enoch B. Pratt Free Library, located at 4420 Loch Raven Blvd. Baltimore, Maryland, 21218, and am writing to provide my strongest, unequivocal support for Senate Bill 848 entitled “Enoch Pratt Free Library – Capital Project Funding” sponsored by Senator Washington. The Northwood Branch of the library system is in desperate need of crucial infrastructure repairs. For example, this will be the 3rd or 4th summer in a row that the library will be without air conditioning. When the temperature soars, it necessitates mandatory closure of the branch for safety reasons, suspending critical services to patrons and the community at large. The building also needs imperative upgrades to its infrastructure.

The Northwood Branch serves as a meaningful anchor for the neighborhood and provides much needed community services, including weekly Al-Anon meetings, book clubs, story time for children, robotics and educational programs and free laptop computers for those that qualify, among many others. In addition, the library circulates thousands of fiction and non-fiction books to its patrons annually.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, the Northwood Branch was one of the hubs that would open for patrons to obtain services that could be provided safely and for me personally, access to books and other materials that had been placed on hold online for pick up. Multiple times per week, Ms. Sandra Scott at the circulation desk would call or email me to let me know that one or more books were available at the library and arrange a time for me to come and pick up the materials. It was often one of the few, if only, outside social interactions that I had during the lockdown phase of the pandemic, and it was so appreciated! Not only was Sandra risking her health to provide patrons with books and materials to combat the drudgery and fatigue of remaining indoors and online, but she always did so with a smile and words of kindness and encouragement. Without qualification, I can truly say that Sandra is a hero of the Enoch B. Pratt Free Library and I know that her job would be easier if the infrastructure issues at the Northwood Branch were resolved—passage of this Senate Bill would make that a reality!

As a frequent patron of the library both during and post-pandemic, I'd also like to express to the Chair, Vice-Chair and Committee Members my appreciation and gratitude to all the staff at the Northwood Branch for exceptionally positive interactions multiple times per week. For example, I frequently discuss my fiction book preferences with Ms. Ny'ilah Whitaker, the Northwood Branch Manager, who is also an avid reader. Based upon those discussions, she has books held at the circulation desk for me written by authors that she intuitively feels that I might like. To me, this goes above and beyond what one might reasonably expect from the administrative management and/or staff at a local library branch. And truly, this type of service and kind support is much needed and appreciated by the neighborhood and patrons of the Northwood Branch.

In closing, thank you for this opportunity to provide my strongest possible letter of support for Senate Bill 848. I sincerely hope that this Bill receives a favorable review and passage as I know how important the work and service that is ongoing at the Northwood Branch is to both me personally and to the neighborhood community.

Sincerely,

Dear Chairman Guzzone,

As a Baltimore City resident and constituent of City Council District 3 and State Senate District 45, I am writing this letter to provide my strongest support of SB848 titled Enoch Pratt Free Library – Capital Project Funding sponsored by Senator Washington. I am a long-term patron of the Pratt Library system and the Northwood Branch at 4420 Loch Raven Boulevard in particular. The Northwood Branch is a crucial component of the community that provides vital services to local residents that go well beyond simply being a source for the thousands of books in circulation. This library branch serves as a safe place for children to go outside of school hours while their parents are at work. It provides daytime shelter from the extreme heat and cold weather for those community residents who are unhoused. It provides a means for idle hands and minds to be occupied; thus, minimizing their owners' opportunities for involvement in dangerous activities such as crime and substance abuse. It provides a source to find answers to questions that patrons might be too afraid or embarrassed to ask. The more tangible services provided by the Northwood Branch include story time for children, book clubs for adults, robotics programs, ALANON meetings, and free laptops for qualified individuals. And... The list goes on. Those items mentioned here barely scratch the surface of the value of the Northwood Branch Library to the community and serving as a steadfast anchor in the neighborhood.

Unfortunately, the building and infrastructure at the Northwood Branch Library have fallen into disrepair and require urgent upgrades to continue all of the outstanding work that they do. I want to commend the Northwood staff for the tireless effort that they put forth, in often difficult circumstances, to help library patrons and maintain a positive environment. For example, the building's air conditioning system is broken, causing the temperatures indoors to be utterly unreasonable. Yet, the staff members continue to work with a smile on their faces and a pleasant demeanor. Beyond the discomfort caused to the library staff, the lack of air conditioning frequently causes the library to be closed, which suspends the critical services that the neighborhood and community so desperately rely on. The ripple effects of the library closures are enormous and beyond measure. It is of the utmost importance that immediate action be taken to perform the much-needed repairs to the Northwood Branch Library building and its infrastructure. Passage of SB848 is one step toward making this a reality.

Thank you for providing this opportunity for me to express my strongest and most enthusiastic support for passage of SB848 as well as an avenue to publicly recognize all of the valuable services and outstanding work that the Northwood Branch Library and its staff provide to the neighborhood and community. They deserve support from the State and City that is commensurate with the service that they provide to library patrons. If you require additional information, please do not hesitate to reach out.

Best regards,

Why community libraries are valuable to the communities they service.

A library's basic functions include the promotion of education, the dissemination of information and the promotion of culture. Promotion of Education: Libraries provide the means of individual self-development and facilitate all modes of education, including formal, non-formal, adult and lifelong education (Brain. on Jan 10 2018).

Whether through books, events, programming, or simply providing space for discussion, Northwood Library plays a critical role in expanding knowledge and engaging people in conversation with each other and encouraging them to be active in their communities. The branch is a place where everyone is welcome, and everyone belongs. Modern, purpose-built libraries are cultural and community places that draw diverse groups to one space. Not just Northwood, but all community libraries are of importance to their users since most give free access to patrons to a conducive environment, and are well equipped with facilities and space that can make patrons comfortable while accessing the information materials. Community libraries play an important role in providing safe, accessible, and free information resource centers for every member of communities. Community libraries are a great place to network and socialize.

Networking is one key thing that enables the community to grow socially and economically. Community libraries like Northwood connect people within the community to services and resources. Why are community libraries important for surrounding schools? Northwood branch provides a comfortable learning space for students, and tutor. It gives a student and tutor an opportunity for one-on-one interaction. I read an article that asked a question. Why are libraries important to schools? Studies show a positive relationship between library quality (school and public) and the amount read, as well as a relationship with reading competence. Better libraries mean more literacy development for younger readers as well as for high school students. U.S. National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, Mar 28, 2023, Studies show a positive relationship between library quality (school and public) and the amount read, as well as a relationship with reading competence. Better libraries mean more literacy development for younger readers as well as for high school students. Ask yourself that question, how would increased funding continue to benefit community libraries in the future? To quote R. David Lankes, "Bad libraries build collections, good libraries build services, great libraries build communities."

Re: Support of Maryland Senate Bill 848

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my strong support for Maryland Senate Bill 848, an act concerning capital project funding for Enoch Pratt Free Library.

The Pratt has played an important role in my family's life for nearly 70 years. When my husband and I moved to Baltimore City as a newly married couple in the mid-1950s, Enoch Pratt Free Library became my first employer and a very welcome first step in my 35-year career as a librarian and later as a teacher and school administrator. In the early 1960s, I moved with my husband and two young children to the neighborhood where I still reside, Kenilworth Park, in Baltimore City, within walking distance of the Northwood Branch of the Pratt. As young parents, my husband and I were very pleased to have the library's resources easily available to our children, who often visited the branch with us or with their friends, to work on assignments for school or just to read for fun. The Pratt was, and still is, a safe space for children in all of the communities nearby and was an essential part of the educational foundation for many, including my own children, who went on to complete college, gain good employment and raise their own children in Baltimore.

My husband and I also visited the Northwood branch or other Pratt branches occasionally to do our own research.

The passage of Senate Bill 848 will help ensure that the resources of the Enoch Pratt Free Library will remain relevant and accessible to current and future generations of parents and children in Baltimore, for the benefit of people throughout the city and beyond.

Sincerely,

Juanita L. Addison

Dear Senator M. Washington,

February 15, 2024

I am writing to express my strong support for the Northwood Enoch Pratt Free Library's application for Bill 848: Capital Project Funding. As a member of this community, I have personally experienced the invaluable role that our library plays in enriching the lives of residents and enhancing our collective well-being.

Our library serves as a vital hub for learning, innovation, and community engagement, from providing access to educational resources and technology to allowing community organizations to have meetings and workshops.

This library and the staff are always so friendly and helpful to me. When I needed flyers copied or posted to promote what was going on in the community, they were kind enough to assist me. During the time I went in to get copies of flyers, I was told about computer classes. I have registered to take classes. I love Ms. Brenda Dudley for her kindness and patience in ensuring everyone in the class is able to learn and understand the instructions for computer class. However, the computers are old and take a long time to boot up.

I feel that in order to continue fulfilling its essential mission, our library is in need of crucial infrastructure improvements and upgrades.

I urge you to consider granting funding to this library. Your support will enable our library to continue serving as a beacon of knowledge, opportunity, and enrichment for future generations.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter. Please do not hesitate to contact me if you require any further information or would like to discuss this matter in more detail.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Janice Bryant-Baker

SENATE BILL 848 Enoch Pratt Free Library—Capital Project Funding

STATEMENT OF INFORMATION

DATE: February 21, 2024

COMMITTEE: Budget and Taxation

SUMMARY OF BILL: Senate Bill 848 (SB 848) repeals and reenacts with amendments a mandate established under Section 23-402(a) of the Education Article, which concerns funding for the Enoch Pratt Free Library System in Baltimore City. Under the current statute, additional operating support in the amount of $3 million has been mandated beginning with fiscal year 2023 and continuing each fiscal year thereafter to fund expenses associated with increased hours of operation across the System. Baltimore City is presently required to provide a 25% match for each dollar of State funds for this purpose, which SB 848 proposes to repeal. Additionally, SB 848 would require $10 million in State appropriation in the annual budget bill in fiscal 2025 and fiscal 2026 to fund improvements to aging infrastructure and capital projects that exceed $1 million. Eligible initiatives may include alterations to achieve ADA compliance, repair or replacement of roofs or HVAC systems, or replacement of obsolete or unsafe buildings. Receipt of State funds under the proposed amendment would require a 10% match from the Enoch Pratt Free Library Board of Trustees.

EXPLANATION: The fiscal 2025 – 2029 Capital Improvement Program (CIP) includes $7.5 million in GO bonds annually for the Maryland State Library Agency under the Public Library Capital Grant Program. This program provides grants to public libraries to acquire land and to design, construct, expand, renovate, and equip public library facilities across the State; inclusive of all those operated under the Enoch Pratt Free Library System. Funding for the program is mandated under Section 23-509 of the Education Article, and each year specific projects are selected by a committee of library directors and trustees, and subsequently approved by the State Library Board. With regards to the proposed legislation, it is the intent of the General Assembly to enhance funding for the Enoch Pratt Free Library System specifically to advance the role of its branches as vital places of community development, arenas for innovation, and resources for the State's workforce system. SB 848 also affirms the System's role in supporting equitable economic recovery by providing its patrons with opportunities to access new technology, gain digital skills, and pursue vocational and educational programs.

The $10 million funding mandate set forth by SB 848 in fiscal 2025 and fiscal 2026 is intended to be supplemental to, and may not supplant, funds appropriated to the Enoch Pratt Free Library System from any other sources. There is one project within the Enoch Pratt Free Library System planned in fiscal 2025 under the Public Library Capital Grant Program, Forest Park Library Renovation and Expansion, at a cost of $2.2 million. Implementing this new mandate would result in a cost of $20 million from fiscal 2025 to fiscal 2026, which would necessitate a reduction in other critical programs and projects already planned in the CIP. The $10 million mandate would not be applicable to the fiscal 2025 capital budget.

Additionally, the repeal of the 25% local match requirement associated with the State's $3 million operating mandate to support extended hours at Enoch Pratt Free Library branches may reduce local operating support to the System by up to $750,000 if Baltimore City decides not to contribute.
