

I testify before this body as a parent currently involved in an appeal with Frederick County Public Schools (FCPS) to have these types of materials removed from our public school shelves.

I apologize for the vulgar and obscene pictures and excerpts.

We aren't asking for a "ban" of these books. They are available at the public library.

There are currently 35 books under appeal in FCPS. There are hundreds more that need to be looked at.

To give you an understanding of how sexualized our schools have become, FCPS has around 300,000 materials on sex and sexuality; but only around 9,000 on abstinence.

They talk about how to involve blood and urine in sexual activity. They involve incest, rape and sexual violence. How is this appropriate for public school? Most of our school children are under the age of majority (18). Most of these books are written for "mature" audience per booklooks.org. They have a rating system not unlike movies and video games.

The majority, if not all the books we brought before FCPS were "not intended for minors." The language is "obscene" and vulgar. The imagery in the graphic novels is inappropriate for young people.

People who oppose removing the books argue "they are going to see it somewhere." How does that make it appropriate for a public school to participate?

My local newspaper refused to publish excerpts from the books we wanted to have removed. We can't read them on the radio nor can we read and show them on public television. If they aren't appropriate for the adults reading and tuning in, why are they appropriate for children?

I'll close with a quote I think sums this up perfectly. It's from Corrie Ten Boom's book "The Hiding Place."

"And so seated next to my father in the train compartment, I suddenly asked, "Father, what is sex sin?"

He turned to look at me, as he always did when answering a question, but to my surprise he said nothing. At last he stood up, lifted his traveling case off the floor and set it on the floor.

Will you carry it off the train, Corrie?" he said.

I stood up and tugged at it. It was crammed with the watches and spare parts he had purchased that morning.

It's too heavy," I said.

Yes," he said, "and it would be a pretty poor father who would ask his little girl to carry such a load. It's the same way, Corrie, with knowledge. Some knowledge is too heavy for children. When you are older and stronger, you can bear it. For now you must trust me to carry it for you."

We are only young and innocent for a short period of time. Let's not rob our children of the joy of youth.

Thank you

Cindy A. Rose,

Things to Try!

Stroke the shaft of your penis with different pressures and speeds. Try mixing up your grip or switch hands.

Whack it against your palm or give it some gentle bending pressure.

FWAP!

Tug or squeeze on your balls.

If you have a foreskin, play with it! Slip a wet finger between it and the glans.

Switch things up and avoid constantly masturbating with a tight hard grip, as it can make it harder to climax in the future.

Try a sex toy for bonus fun. Vibes and strokers are awesome!

else, if you're interested in an activity and your partner just really isn't, don't push.

STI risk: No risk (as long as skin is not broken and items used or shared are clean).

Pregnancy risk: No risk.

Body Fluid or Blood Play

What is it, and how do I do it?

Some people enjoy any number of body fluids sexually: ejaculate, vaginal fluids, menses, urine, or blood. They may simply enjoy tasting, feeling, or smelling them during sexual activities, or they may engage in activities specific to enjoying those fluids, such as "golden showers" (being urinated on) or having a partner ejaculate on them. Some enjoy this because it feels taboo, or naughty, to have intimate contact with body fluids. For others, fluid play may be enjoyable because a certain intimacy or sacredness is experienced in fluid bonding.

But from an infection and disease perspective, fluid play can be dangerous, especially when body fluids have contact with incredibly sensitive sites like the eyes. Whereas urine itself is sterile, it does pass through the urethra, where an infection may be present. Ejaculate can carry several different infections. Contact with blood, or cutting or piercing partners in any way, opens the door to some of the deadlier diseases and infections out there, like hepatitis B and HIV.

So, for the most part, this sort of play is quite risky, especially for younger couples, the majority of whom have not had sound or regular sexual health care. Most younger people have not had safer sex with a monogamous partner long enough to be safely "fluid-bonded."

STI risk: Very high risk.

Pregnancy risk: No risk, unless semen comes into contact with a vulva.

Sex Toys

What is it, and how do I do it?

Sex toys come in many varieties. From vibrators—electric and battery-operated, big and small, swanky and silly—to silicone dildos, anal plugs to masturbation sleeves, cock rings to clitoral suction devices, toys and tools run the gamut. People use them for masturbation as well as for partnered sex, by themselves or in conjunction with other activities.

Generally, sex toys aren't available for purchase by minors and are sold in sex toy shops, through catalogs, and on Internet sites. Some people also make their own sex toys or use household objects as sexual toys or aids: electric toothbrushes, plastic bottles, socks, pillows, and all sorts of other objects.

So long as simple directions are followed for items sold as sex toys, they're usually safe for use. For instance, using something electrical in a bathtub isn't safe or smart, and using an item not designed for anal use—and without a flared base—in the anus is a bad idea. Anything with sharp edges should generally not be used on or in the genitals. You must be able to cover with a latex barrier anything that is being used as a sex toy, especially if it is shared, or be able to boil it; otherwise, you could brew and pass around infections and bacteria. Shared (and uncovered) toys are often a very common route for infections to be spread between female partners, something lesbian women often aren't

When it comes to reproducing, the penis and the vagina can fit together to form the ultimate baby-making machine. Let's take a peek right now and see how—

WHOA, that's NOT safe for work!

Reproduction aside, your genitals exist to let you feel pleasure with yourself or others (no matter which genitals they may have). Sexual intimacy is a powerful way to feel good and bond with another person, whether it's for a night or a lifetime.

Ahhhh.
I can't handle any more.

Our bodies are so incredible!!!

Shloop!

...Makes me wanna have some alone time with my bits.

Get outta here, Suri!

Shoo!

Figure 1

Things to Try!

Trail your fingers around and over your vulva. Flutter your fingers lightly from place to place.

Tug, pull, and rub your labia.

Circle your fingers around and over your clit. Give it a couple quick pats!

Press and pull on the skin around your vulva to make it taut.

Try slipping a finger or two inside your vagina.

Later on, try adding a sex toy to your masturbation! They can bring a completely new sensation that you can't experience with just your hands.

Push
