House Bill 512 (Delegate Poole)
Economic Matters

Real Property - Relocation of Ingress and Egress Easements

This bill establishes conditions under which the owner of land that is subject to an ingress and egress easement may relocate the easement. Specifically, the bill provides that the owner of the land must record, in the land records of the county in which the easement is located, a written agreement that evidences the consent of all interested parties and indicates the new location of the easement. In the absence of a written agreement, the owner may petition the circuit court to relocate the easement.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: Potential minimal increase in general and special fund revenues, as discussed below. No effect on expenditures.

Local Effect: None.

Fiscal Analysis

State Effect: General fund revenues would increase to the extent that recordings are made to relocate ingress and egress easements. Recordings in the land records require payment of a recordation fee that ranges from $10 to $75, depending on the length of the recording and the type of instrument that is being recorded. Special fund revenues would stem from a surcharge, not to exceed $5, that is applied for each type of instrument that is recorded in the land records and that is deposited into the Land Records Improvement Fund. The volume of recordings and petitions resulting from the bill is expected to be minimal.
