House Bill 708 (Delegate Marriott. et al.)

Judiciary

Parole - Approval of the Governor

This bill allows a person serving a life sentence to be paroled without the approval of the Governor if the person has served at least 20 years, or the equivalent of 20 years after allowing for consideration of specified diminution credits.

The provisions of this bill sunset after September 30, 2004.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: Potential indeterminate expenditure savings. Revenues would not be affected.

Local Effect: None.

Small Business Effect: None.

Fiscal Analysis

State Expenditures: The average length of stay for life term inmates is 30 years (360 months). The Division of Correction (DOC) reports that there were no life term prisoners paroled in 1998, 1997, or 1996; five were paroled in 1995 (including medical paroles); and one in 1994. The intake of life sentenced prisoners over that same time frame has been 103 in 1998; 101 in 1997; 99 in 1996; 110 in 1995; and 102 in 1994. DOC now has 1,976 prisoners serving a life term.

The Maryland Parole Commission reports the following as numbers of persons serving a life term and recommended for parole by the commission (not including medical paroles) via the current mechanism that includes gubernatorial approval:

Year	Submitted to Governor	Approved by Governor	Denied by Governor
1988	12	0	12
1989	8	1	7
1990	7	0	7
1991	16	9	7
1992	14	5	9
1993	7	4	3
1994	11	6	5
1995	5	0	5
1996	0	0	0
1997	0	0	0
1998	2	0	2
Totals	82	25	57

Since 1995 the Parole Commission has not submitted any names of life prisoners to the Governor for parole. It is possible that some persons denied parole in a given year may have eventually been successful in being granted parole in a subsequent year.

In any event, to the extent that additional paroles of inmates serving life terms would be granted under the provisions of this bill, DOC could experience minimal savings based on actual per inmate expenses for food, medication, and supplies (approximately $275 per month). Any potential for significant savings depends on whether the reduction in the number of inmates would be sufficient to affect average daily prison populations. The number of in banc reviews that would be requested, the outcomes of any such reviews, and whether any resulting increased costs for DOC would be offset by decreased incarceration costs cannot be reliably predicted at this time.

The extent to which this bill could affect the workload and costs of the Division of Parole and Probation for those additional persons who might be granted parole under this bill cannot be reliably calculated at this time.
