FISCAL NOTE

Senate Bill 689 (Senator Forehand)

Judicial Proceedings

---

Crimes - Use of Cameras and Visual Surveillance

---

This bill prohibits a person from placing a camera on real property or places of public use or accommodation for purposes of conducting deliberate surreptitious observation of persons inside a private residence. Violators are guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of up to $1,000 and/or imprisonment up to 30 days. Specified individuals are exempted from the bill's provisions.

The bill also provides that ownership of the private residence is not a defense to any civil action brought under this provision if the owner is not an adult resident or the resident's legal guardian. Good faith reliance on a court order is a complete defense to any civil or criminal action brought under this provision. Further, a victim who was observed by a camera in violation of this bill has a civil cause of action against any person who placed or otherwise brought a camera onto the real property. A court may award the victim damages and reasonable attorneys' fees. The bill does not limit any legal or equitable rights or remedies otherwise available by common law or statute. The bill applies prospectively only.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: Potential minimal increase in general fund revenues as a result of the bill's penalty provisions. General fund expenditures would not be affected.

Local Effect: Potential minimal increase in expenditures as a result of the bill's penalty provisions. Revenues would not be affected.

Small Business Effect: None.

Fiscal Analysis

State Revenues: Generally, offenders conducting unsolicited visual surveillance are fined

(as opposed to incarcerated). Assuming a continuation of current sentencing patterns, general fund revenues could increase minimally as a result of the bill's monetary penalty provision for those cases heard in the District Court.

Local Expenditures: Expenditures could increase as a result of the bill's incarceration penalty. Counties pay the full cost of incarceration for the first 90 days of the sentence, plus part of the per diem cost after 90 days. Per diem operating cost of local detention facilities are expected to range from $15 to $80 per inmate in fiscal 2000.
