20 Preamble

21 WHEREAS, Each year some 10,000 Americans sustain spinal cord injuries 22 which typically result in some degree of paralysis; and

23 WHEREAS, The major cause of spinal cord injuries is motor vehicle crashes and 24 58 percent of the victims of these injuries are young people between 16 and 30 years 25 of age; and

26 WHEREAS, It has long been generally assumed that most persons who sustain 27 a spinal cord injury can be rehabilitated to some extent, but that damage to neural 28 tissue is irreversible; and

29 WHEREAS, The conventional wisdom concerning the successful treatment of 30 spinal cord injuries has changed dramatically in light of research in Great Britain, 31 Sweden, and the United States which demonstrates that there are no fundamental 32 biological barriers to repairing damaged spinal cord neural tissue and that the 33 possibility of effective regenerative therapies for human neural cell injury is no longer 34 speculation but a realistic goal; and

35 WHEREAS, There is more hope today than ever before that persons whose lives 36 have been devastated by spinal cord injury can see their injuries reversed to some 37 extent; and

1 WHEREAS, Most funding concerning spinal cord injury traditionally has been 2 for rehabilitation research rather than research for basic neurological tissue 3 regeneration with the objective of finding a cure for spinal cord injury; and

4 WHEREAS, Research concerning neurological tissue regeneration for spinal 5 cord injury can be facilitated and enhanced by establishing an administrative unit at 6 the State level with sufficient expertise, commitment, and funding to promote this 7 type of research with a focus on finding a cure for spinal cord injury; and

8 WHEREAS, Because driving at an excessive speed is a common contributor to 9 motor vehicle accidents, which in turn are the major cause of spinal cord injuries, it is 10 appropriate that individuals who are convicted of speeding violations bear some of the 11 cost of funding spinal cord injury cure research; now, therefore,

12 SECTION 1. BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF 13 MARYLAND, That the Laws of Maryland read as follows:

14 Article – Courts and Judicial Proceedings
