Analysis

Current Law: There are no provisions granting health benefits to members of the Baltimore City Board of Liquor License Commissioners.

Local Expenditures: There are three members of the board, including the chair, who would be eligible to receive health benefits. The most expensive health plan available to the members costs the city $5,000 per year per employee. Board members would also be eligible for a $1,568 prescription plan and a $48 vision plan. If members would opt for these health plans, Baltimore City will expend an additional $6,616 per board member per year, a total of $19,848.
