FISCAL NOTE

House Bill 698 (Delegate McIntosh. et al.)

Commerce and Government Matters

---

Commercial Law - Revolving Credit Plans -
Access to Home Equity Credit Through Use of Credit Device

---

This bill repeals the provision of law that prohibits a revolving credit plan from being secured by a lien on residential real property if the plan is accessed through the use of a credit device through which the credit grantor acquires purchase obligations incurred by honoring the credit device.

---

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: The bill would not directly affect governmental operations or finances.

Local Effect: None.

Small Business Effect: Minimal.

Analysis

Current Law: Under a revolving credit plan, a credit grantor may take any security as collateral, except residential real property secured by a credit device through which the credit grantor acquires purchase obligations incurred by honoring the credit device. A credit device is “any card, plate, check, draft, identification code, or other means of identification contemplated by the agreement governing the plan.”

Background: The issuer of a credit card becomes obligated to a seller for the purchases made by a cardholder.
