Credit Regulation - Short-Term Small Consumer Loan Study Commission

This bill establishes a 16-member Short-Term Small Consumer Loan Study Commission. The commission is required to: (1) determine the need for short-term, small consumer loans in Maryland; (2) identify reasons why traditional lenders may not be fully meeting the need for these loans; (3) evaluate alternatives to help meet the need for these loans; (4) evaluate the services provided by the check cashing industry to Maryland consumers and determine whether the public need for check cashing services is being met by that industry; and (5) determine the impact of the State's check cashing services laws on that industry and the delivery of check cashing services to consumers.

The Department of Legislative Services (DLS) is required to staff the commission. The commission is required to report on its recommendations, including proposed legislation, if any, by December 1, 2003. The recommendations may not include increasing allowable fees charged by licensed check cashing services. The bill is effective June 1, 2002, and it terminates December 31, 2003.

Current Law: Under Maryland law, the maximum permissible annual interest rate for small loans (under $6,000) varies with the amount of the loan up to 33%. The maximum duration for such loans also varies with the amount of the loan up to 72 months and 15 days.

Background: Chapter 630 of 2001 created a 14-member Short-Term Small Consumer Loan Study Commission. That commission was to: (1) determine the need for short-term, small consumer loans in Maryland; (2) identify reasons why traditional lenders may not be fully meeting the need for these loans; and (3) evaluate alternatives to help meet the need for these loans. The commission established in Chapter 630 was never appointed. The provisions of Chapter 630 that established the study commission terminated December 31, 2001.
