Analysis

Current Law: The Maryland Constitution provides for the gubernatorial succession by the Lieutenant Governor if the office of Governor becomes vacant. If there are simultaneous vacancies in the offices of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor, the General Assembly is to convene and elect in joint session by simple majority a new Governor to serve for the remainder of the term. The President of the Senate serves as acting Governor until the newly elected Governor has qualified for the position. The newly chosen Governor nominates a new Lieutenant Governor and the General Assembly votes to confirm the nominee in the same joint session and by simple majority. The Maryland Constitution gives the Court of Appeals original and exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate, among other things, disputes or questions regarding gubernatorial succession.

Background: The U. S. Constitution provides that when there is a vacancy in the office of President, the Vice President becomes President for the remainder of the term. Furthermore, Title 3 of the U. S. Code provides for further presidential succession if both the offices of President and Vice President are simultaneously vacant. Generally, in this instance, the line of presidential succession is: Speaker of the House of Representatives, President pro tempore of the Senate, Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of Defense, and so on through all cabinet secretaries.
