FISCAL AND POLICY NOTE

House Bill 294 (Delegate Burns)
 Ways and Means

Income Tax Credit - Child Support - Incarcerated Noncustodial Parent

This bill creates a tax credit against the State income tax for custodial parents who are unable to collect outstanding child support obligations. To qualify, the court-ordered child support obligations must be at least 180 days in arrears; the child support obligor must be incarcerated and unable to make the child support payments; and the custodial parent must have a federal adjusted gross income of $50,000 or less. The Child Support Enforcement Administration (CSEA), in consultation with the Comptroller’s Office, is required to adopt regulations to certify eligible individuals for the credit. The amount of the credit cannot exceed $1,000 or the tax liability in that year.

The bill takes effect July 1, 2008 and applies to tax year 2008 and beyond.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: General fund revenues would decrease by $3.8 million annually beginning in FY 2009 due to credits being claimed by eligible individuals. General fund expenditures would increase by $34,000 in FY 2009 which reflects one-time tax form changes and computer programming expenditures.

Analysis

Current Law: No similar State income tax credit exists, but lower-income individuals with children can qualify for federal and State income tax credits as discussed below.

Background: According to CSEA, in federal fiscal 2007, 235,603 child support orders were in force and $495.9 million in child support was collected. About 62% of the child support caseload pays on arrears obligations.

The federal earned income credit (EIC) is a credit available to lower-income individuals. A joint Internal Revenue Service (IRS) – Department of Treasury task force estimated that nationwide the EIC lifted 4.3 million individuals, including 2.3 million children, out of poverty in 2000. Maryland’s income tax law has provided a nonrefundable State EIC equal to 50% of the federal EIC since 1987. Chapter 5 of 1998 established a refundable EIC for taxpayers who both meet the eligibility standards of the federal credit and have at least one dependent. Subsequent legislation set the value of the credit equal to 25% of the federal EIC, minus any pre-credit State income tax liability.

State Revenues: Tax credits could be claimed beginning in tax year 2008. As a result, general fund revenues could decrease by $3.8 million in fiscal 2009. This estimate is based on the following facts and figures:

- According to CSEA, 6,189 custodial parents could qualify for the tax credit. CSEA also advises that approximately one-tenth of these individuals receive some type of public assistance. It is assumed that these individuals currently do not have a State income tax liability.
- Based on the income range specified by the bill, individuals would claim, on average, approximately $675 in tax year 2008.

Future year losses are estimated to increase 3% annually – a 1% increase in credits claimed and 2% increase in the average credit claimed.

State Expenditures: The Comptroller’s Office reports that it would incur a one-time expenditure increase of $34,000 in fiscal 2009 to add the credit to the personal income tax form. This includes processing changes to the SMART income tax return processing and imaging systems and systems testing.
