FISCAL AND POLICY NOTE

House Bill 911 (Delegate Carter, et al.)
Ways and Means and Judiciary

Education - Tween/Teen Dating Violence (Kristin Marie Mitchell Law)

This bill requires the State Board of Education, on or before January 1, 2011, to adopt a program in the public schools to educate students about dating violence. The program must include education on services provided to victims of dating violence and must be started before the sixth grade.

The bill also expands the definition of a “victim of domestic violence” to include as the perpetrator a person with whom the individual has or has had a dating relationship. The Governor is required to proclaim the first week of February as Tween/Teen Dating Violence Education and Awareness Week.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: General fund expenditures increase by an estimated $13,600 in FY 2011 to develop a program in the public schools to educate students about dating violence. The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) can handle the bill’s requirements in future years using existing resources. Revenues are not affected.

| (in dollars) | FY 2011 | FY 2012 | FY 2013 | FY 2014 | FY 2015 |

Local Effect: Local school expenditures may increase minimally to implement the dating violence program with support from MSDE.

Small Business Effect: None.

Analysis

Current Law: Pursuant to Chapter 344 of 2009, the State Board of Education must encourage local boards of education to incorporate age-appropriate lessons on dating violence into the health education curriculum.

With the advice of the State Superintendent of Schools, the State Board of Education establishes basic policy and guidelines for the program of instruction for public schools. Subject to State law and the bylaws, policies, and guidelines established by the State Board of Education, each local board of education must establish the curriculum guides and courses of study for schools in its jurisdiction.

A “victim of domestic violence” is defined as an individual who has received deliberate, severe and demonstrable physical injury or is in fear of imminent deliberate, severe, and demonstrable physical injury from a current or former spouse or a current or former cohabitant.

Seven official commemorative days and two months are recognized in State law as shown in Exhibit 1. The Governor also must issue a proclamation each year encouraging citizens and other individuals to observe a moment of silence at 3 p.m. on Memorial Day to unite in remembrance and commemorate the heroic acts and efforts of Marylanders who have served and died in the U.S. armed forces.

Background: Kristin Marie Mitchell, an Ellicott City, Maryland native, was 21 when she was murdered by her boyfriend. Following her death in 2005, her friends and family established the Kristin Mitchell Foundation to support educational efforts that raise awareness among young adults about the dangers of unhealthy dating relationships.

The first full week in February has been recognized as National Teen Dating Violence Awareness and Prevention Week by the U.S. Congress every year since 2006. According to the New York Times, limited public health research estimates about 10% of adolescent relationships are abusive. An online survey by Liz Claiborne Inc. reports that only 51% of respondents claimed to know the warning signs of a bad or hurtful relationship, and one in five 13 to 14 year olds in a relationship say they know friends and peers who have been struck in anger by a boyfriend or girlfriend. A survey by the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene showed that dating violence in the city has risen by more than 40% since 1999.

Some other states have begun to take action against tweens and teenagers dating violence. In 2006, Tennessee passed a law urging its department of education to develop curriculum for grades 7 through 12 to raise student awareness of teen dating and sexual violence. Texas law requires each school district to adopt and implement a dating violence policy. New York has recently expanded its domestic violence law to include teenagers in dating relationships.

MSDE advises that the health education voluntary State curriculum includes a framework that addresses healthy relationships and domestic violence. The Department of Human Resources advises that rape crisis centers provide prevention education and awareness programs in their local communities, including schools. Dating violence is addressed under these circumstances, not only with students from elementary to high school, but also with parents, teachers, and other professionals.

State Expenditures: General fund expenditures increase by an estimated $13,600 in fiscal 2011. This estimate reflects the cost of developing age-appropriate resources regarding dating violence and posting the information online. The estimate includes funds for travel reimbursement, as MSDE advises that the program will be created with input from local school system representatives and partner agencies. The estimate also includes funds to purchase materials to develop and support a teacher training program that will be required once the program is developed. Once the program is developed, MSDE can provide any technical support to local school systems using existing resources.

Local Expenditures: Local school systems will be responsible for costs associated with the implementation of the dating violence program developed by MSDE, including the duplication of materials and training teachers. Frederick County estimates that its expenditures will increase annually by $127,650 for workshops, professional development, and materials for the new program. Montgomery County advises that schools already have violence awareness and prevention programs and that any costs for supplies and training associated with this bill will require a reduction in resources for other programs.

Additional Information

Prior Introductions: HB 845 of 2009 passed the House, but no action was taken on the bill in the Senate. Its cross file, SB 1049, was amended and enacted as Chapter 344.

Cross File: SB 984 (Senator Muse) - Rules.
