Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs

Hunting Wild Waterfowl - Dorchester, St. Mary's, Somerset, and Wicomico
Counties

This bill decreases the minimum distance, from 800 to 400 yards, that a person hunting wild waterfowl in specified waters of Dorchester, St. Mary's, Somerset, and Wicomico counties must be from shore while standing in water on the natural bottom, from a boat that is drifting or being sculled, or from a boat that is anchored.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: The bill's changes can be handled with existing budgeted resources.

Local Effect: The bill does not directly affect local operations or finances.

Small Business Effect: Minimal.

Analysis

Current Law: By regulation, the Department of Natural Resources establishes an offshore waterfowl hunting zone. Within this zone, a person may hunt waterfowl while standing on the natural bottom, from a boat that is drifting or being sculled, or from a boat that is anchored. In most areas, a person must be at least 800 yards from shore. In specified waters, including the waters of Harford and Baltimore counties, the minimum required distance is 400 yards.

Additional Information

Prior Introductions: None.
