

Department of Legislative Services

Maryland General Assembly

2010 Session

FISCAL AND POLICY NOTE

House Bill 954

(Delegate Anderson)(By Request - Baltimore City Administration)

Environmental Matters

---

Vehicle Laws - Parking Violations - Administrative Enforcement by Counties and Municipal Corporations

---

This bill authorizes a county or municipal corporation to establish, by ordinance, an agency or board to implement an alternative enforcement program for the issuance of civil parking citations for stopping, standing, and parking of vehicles. The bill excludes from District Court jurisdiction the adjudication of parking citation cases in jurisdictions that adopt an ordinance under the bill, except for judicial review of an appeal. The bill specifies that a parking citation established by ordinance under the bill is a civil infraction and not a misdemeanor as is generally the case for violations of the Maryland Vehicle Law.

---

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: To the extent a local jurisdiction adopts an ordinance authorized under the bill, Transportation Trust Fund (TTF) revenues increase due to additional registration restoration and flag removal fees; TTF expenditures and operations may be affected to process additional registration-related transactions; general fund revenues decrease minimally due to fewer contested parking cases heard by the District Court; and District Court workloads decrease minimally.

Local Effect: Local government expenditures and revenues increase for any jurisdiction that adopts an ordinance authorized by the bill to enforce and administratively adjudicate civil parking violations; it is assumed that revenues from parking penalties will exceed the expenditures necessary to implement the ordinance. Statewide local government revenues may increase minimally due to an increase in the distribution of highway user revenues.

Small Business Effect: None.

---

Analysis

Bill Summary: An ordinance adopted under the bill must: (1) provide for the contents of a parking citation; (2) determine the amount of the fines; (3) identify the authorities who may issue a parking citation; (4) establish an agency or board to process the parking citations, collect fines, and adjudicate contested citations; (5) provide for the right to a hearing before the agency or board; and (6) specify that the standard of proof in a contested case is either the preponderance of evidence standard or a more stringent standard adopted by the county or municipal corporation.

The ordinance must also require that the alternative parking citation enforcement board or agency notify the Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) when there is a failure to pay a parking citation fine, to contest the citation, or to appear at an adjudication of the citation. MVA must then refuse to register, or transfer the registration of, the vehicle involved in the parking citation case, and may suspend the registration of the vehicle.

An alternative parking enforcement program established by ordinance under the bill is exempt from current procedures governing the payment of parking citations and requests to contest parking citations, as well as other procedures for the disposition of traffic citation cases.

The bill requires the Chief Judge of the District Court to adopt procedures for the appeal of parking citations issued under an alternative parking citation enforcement ordinance. An appeal to the District Court from an adjudication must be heard on the record.

Current Law: The Maryland Vehicle Law governs the stopping, standing, and parking of vehicles, and provides specific additional restrictions and prohibitions relating to stopping, standing, and parking under certain circumstances and within certain jurisdictions. Subject to the Maryland Vehicle Law, a local authority, in the reasonable exercise of its police power, may regulate or prohibit the stopping, standing, or parking of vehicles on highways under its jurisdiction.

Political subdivisions and other local authorities are generally prohibited from requiring the registration or licensing of vehicles, and the imposition of fees or charges, except as provided by public local laws for the regulation of taxi services. However, the Maryland Vehicle Law authorizes local ordinances and regulations regarding the parking, towing, and impounding of vehicles in certain circumstances.

MVA may not register or transfer the registration of any vehicle involved in a parking violation, and may suspend the registration of the vehicle, if notified that the person cited for the violation has failed to pay the fine on time, file a notice of intention to stand trial, or fail to appear for trial.

The District Court has exclusive jurisdiction over specified civil infractions of the Maryland Vehicle Law, including those involving automated traffic monitoring systems. Otherwise, a violation of the Maryland Vehicle Law is a misdemeanor (unless specifically declared a felony or administrative infraction) for which the District Court generally has criminal jurisdiction. However, a misdemeanor may be brought in either the District Court or a circuit court, at the discretion of the prosecutor, if the penalty is confinement for three years or more or a fine of $2,500 or more. The amount of the prepayable fine for a violation of the provisions regulating stopping, standing, or parking is $40, $50, or $60, depending on the specific violation.

State Fiscal Effect: TTF revenues may increase due to the collection of additional registration flag removal and restoration fees by MVA. Currently, local governments are authorized to notify MVA regarding the failure to pay the fine on a parking citation. On notification, MVA places a flag on the registration of the vehicle involved, and the owner of the vehicle must pay a $30 fee to have the flag removed once the parking fine or other violation giving rise to the flag has been satisfied. MVA is also authorized to suspend the registration of a vehicle for nonpayment of a parking fine. Legislative Services advises that local jurisdictions do not fully exercise their authority to have MVA place flags on the registration of vehicles with unpaid parking violations. For example, in Baltimore City, several thousand parking citations are paid over a year late annually, and in 2006, there were 100,000 unpaid parking citations. If several large jurisdictions adopt the ordinance authorized by the bill and comply with the requirement to notify MVA of each unpaid parking citation, TTF revenues may increase significantly through additional collection of flag removal and suspension restoration fees.

TTF expenditures may increase to hire additional personnel if the number of vehicle registration suspensions and flag impositions increases significantly in any year due to one large jurisdiction, or several smaller jurisdictions, adopting an ordinance under the bill. In addition, MVA advises that computer reprogramming work is necessary to implement the bill and may result in TTF expenditures to the extent that such work cannot be accomplished by the bill's effective date with existing resources.

General fund revenues may decrease minimally due to fewer contested parking cases heard in the District Court. In a contested parking case heard by a local adjudicative board established by an ordinance under the bill, any penalty assessed will remain with the local jurisdiction, and no court costs will be imposed.

District Court operations may be minimally affected to establish procedures for handling appeals from administrative agencies established by ordinance under the bill. However, District Court workloads may decrease to a more significant extent following adoption of any local ordinances under the bill as adjudications are handled locally. Overall, the bill is not anticipated to have a material fiscal effect on the Judiciary.

Local Fiscal Effect: Local finances are only significantly affected for jurisdictions that adopt an ordinance authorized by the bill. For a jurisdiction that adopts an ordinance, one-time expenditures increase to establish the required agency or board for adjudication of contested cases resulting from civil fines levied under the bill, as well as for any costs involved with adoption of the ordinance, including providing for local hearings. Significant ongoing expenditures include potential costs associated with agency or board membership, hearings, and any additional personnel needed to handle the issuance of citations.

Legislative Services is unable to provide a reliable estimate of the additional revenues that may accrue to a local government following adoption of an ordinance authorized under the bill. While local revenues from the issuance of parking citations currently amount to several million dollars in larger jurisdictions, it is unknown whether the incremental increase in fine revenues resulting from the adoption of an ordinance is significantly greater than the revenues currently generated, to the extent that the relevant jurisdiction presently provides for parking enforcement. The bill does not specify the amount of the civil parking fines that may be assessed under the bill, and it is unknown at what level each jurisdiction would choose to set its fine, or whether it would exceed current levels, to the extent fines are currently levied.

Baltimore City has provided an estimate of the expenditures, revenues, and other impacts that may result from implementation of an ordinance under the bill. According to Baltimore City, parking fine revenues may increase by more than $2.3 million annually, while the city would budget for expenditures of about $1.4 million annually ($2 million in the first year for start-up costs). Thus, net revenues for the city may exceed more than $1 million annually under the ordinance. Further, Baltimore City advises that the operations of its parking control unit will benefit significantly as significantly less time will be spent at contested parking hearings in District Court and more time will be spent enforcing the parking ordinance. Fiscal and operational impacts may vary for other jurisdictions depending on current parking enforcement practices and future implementation of an ordinance under the bill.

---

Additional Information

Prior Introductions: None.

Cross File: SB 707 (Senator McFadden)(By Request - Baltimore County Administration) - Judicial Proceedings.

Information Source(s): Caroline, Howard, and Montgomery counties; Baltimore City; towns of Bel Air and Leonardtown; Judiciary (Administrative Office of the Courts); Maryland Department of Transportation; Department of Legislative Services

Fiscal Note History: First Reader - March 1, 2010
ncs/ljm

---

Analysis by: Evan M. Isaacson

Direct Inquiries to:
(410) 946-5510
(301) 970-5510