Election Law - Petitions - Prohibited Actions

This bill expands the existing prohibition against a person willfully and knowingly obtaining, or attempting to obtain, any signature to a petition by fraud, duress, or force to also include doing so by threat, menace, or intimidation. The bill also prohibits a person from preventing, hindering, or delaying another person who has a lawful right to sign a petition from signing a petition through the use of fraud, duress, force, threat, menace, or intimidation. A person who violates these prohibitions is guilty of a misdemeanor and is subject to existing criminal penalties.

The bill takes effect June 1, 2011.

Analysis

Current Law: Various offenses relating to petitions and signing of petitions are specified in the Election Law Article, including willfully and knowingly obtaining, or attempting to obtain, any signature to a petition by fraud, duress, or force (which is being expanded by the bill). The other offenses are, willfully and knowingly:

- giving, transferring, promising, or offering anything of value as an inducement to sign or not sign a petition;
- requesting, receiving, or agreeing to receive, anything of value as an inducement to sign or not sign a petition;
- misrepresenting any fact for the purpose of inducing another person to sign or not to sign a petition;
- signing the name of another person to a petition;
- falsifying a signature or purported signature to a petition;
- circulating, causing to be circulated, or filing with an election authority a petition that contains false, forged, or fictitious signatures;
- signing a petition that the person is not legally qualified to sign;
- signing a petition more than once; and
- altering any petition after it is filed with the election authority.

A person who violates any of these prohibitions is guilty of a misdemeanor and is subject to a fine of between $10 and $250 and/or imprisonment of between 30 days and six months.

State Revenues: General fund revenues may increase minimally as a result of the bill's monetary penalty provisions from cases heard in the District Court.

State Expenditures: General fund expenditures may increase minimally as a result of the bill's incarceration penalty due to more people being committed to Division of Correction facilities for convictions in Baltimore City. The number of people convicted of these proposed crimes is expected to be minimal.

Generally, persons serving a sentence of one year or less in a jurisdiction other than Baltimore City are sentenced to a local detention facility. The Baltimore City Detention Center, a State-operated facility, is used primarily for pretrial detentions.

Local Expenditures: Expenditures may increase minimally as a result of the bill's incarceration penalties. Counties pay the full cost of incarceration for people in their facilities for the first 12 months of the sentence. Per diem operating costs of local detention facilities have ranged from $57 to $157 per inmate in recent years.
