Analysis

Current Law: MPIA grants the public a broad right of access to records that are in the possession of State and local government agencies. The Act's basic mandate is to enable people to have access to government records without unnecessary cost or delay. Custodians have a responsibility to provide such access unless the requested records fall within one of the exceptions in the statute. A custodian must deny any inspection of certain public records, including, for example, adoption records, welfare records, and certain hospital records. A custodian must deny inspection of certain other public records only in part. For example, a custodian must deny inspection of the part of a public record that contains the home address or telephone number of a public employee.

A “custodian” is defined under MPIA as the official custodian or other authorized individual with physical custody and control of a public record.
