State Government - Commemorative Days - Crime Victims and Advocates

This bill requires the Governor to annually proclaim April 3 as Crime Victim and Advocate Commemorative Day to honor the individuals in the State who have become crime victims and the advocates who serve those victims. The Governor must also take appropriate steps to publicize Crime Victim and Advocate Commemorative Day.

---

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: Commemorating Crime Victim and Advocate Day and publicizing the event does not materially affect State finances.

Local Effect: None.

Small Business Effect: None.

Analysis

Current Law: Eight official commemorative days and three months are recognized in State law as shown in Exhibit 1. The Governor also must issue a proclamation each year encouraging citizens and other individuals to observe a moment of silence at 3 p.m. on Memorial Day to unite in remembrance and commemorate the heroic acts and efforts of Marylanders who have served and died in the U.S. armed forces.

Background: Maryland crime victim services are coordinated through the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention. The Maryland General Assembly created the State Board of Victim Services in 1988 to ensure that all crime victims are treated with dignity, respect, and compassion during all phases of the criminal justice process. In 1991, the General Assembly created the Maryland Victims of Crime Fund to provide funding support for victim services. Money for this fund is generated through fees collected by the courts from defendants, and that money is subsequently used to award grants to help crime victims.

National Crime Victims' Rights Week has been celebrated and observed at the federal level during April since 1981. The next National Crime Victims' Rights Week will be observed April 22-28, 2012.

On April 3, 1982, Stephanie Roper, a Frostburg State University student, was kidnapped, raped, tortured, and murdered, after her car became disabled during a weekend visit with her family. In October 1982, friends and neighbors of Stephanie incorporated the Stephanie Roper Committee and Foundation, Inc. In the fall of 2002, the name was changed to the Maryland Crime Victims' Resource Center, Inc. a statewide nonprofit organization dedicated to service the interests of crime victims in Maryland.

Crime Rates in Maryland

Maryland's crime rates are among the highest in the nation. According to the FBI's Uniform Crime Report, when the District of Columbia is included in the rankings, in 2010, Maryland had the ninth highest violent crime rate, the third highest murder rate, and the fourth highest robbery rate. The FBI recorded 430 murders in Maryland compared to 369 in Virginia, even though Virginia has over 2.2 million more residents. The District of Columbia and Louisiana had the nation's highest murder rates while Vermont and New Hampshire had the lowest. Exhibit 2 compares the crime rates in Maryland with neighboring Virginia for calendar 2010.

Among the State's 24 subdivisions, Baltimore City had the highest crime rate in 2010, followed closely by Worcester, Prince George's, and Wicomico counties. Carroll, Frederick, Garrett, and Kent counties had the lowest crime rates. Crime rate statistics are from the Uniform Crime Report for 2010 (Exhibit 3).
