Analysis

Current Law: A local board of elections must provide notice of each ballot question in a general election either by specimen ballot mailed at least one week before the general election or by publication or dissemination by mass communication during the three weeks immediately preceding the general election. For a ballot question that is a constitutional amendment or a State law referendum, the notice must include, among other information, a brief statement, prepared in clear and concise language, without technical and legal terms to the extent practicable, summarizing the question.

The State Board of Elections, in consultation with the election directors of the local boards of elections, must specify and produce various information materials to be posted in each polling place by election judges before the polls open.

Background: Redistricting occurs every 10 years following the U.S. decennial census. Maryland's most recent congressional districting plan was enacted under Chapter 1 of the 2011 special session and the most recent legislative districting plan was adopted under Joint Resolutions 1 and 2 of 2012. Chapter 1 of the 2011 special session was petitioned to referendum and approved by the voters at the 2012 general election.
