The purpose for the project is to finish the remaining 5,000 square feet of the 10,000 square foot Thomas L. Hance Life Share Building which Farming 4 Hunger leases from Serenity Farm through a long-term renewable lease. The space will include: an office, bathroom, conference/training room, value-added prep space, walk-in fridge, and space for sorting, packaging and distributing fresh produce that we deliver to the hunger community. Finishing this space is necessary for Farming 4 Hunger to work more efficiently, build capacity, continue training inmates and students in agricultural activities, and carry out our work with the community.

28. Comments

Farming 4 Hunger is staffed by three paid employees and four core volunteer staff, plus several other professionals who volunteer their time with the Farm. Having an office space and conference/teaching room will increase our capacity, and provide more continuity and ease of communication among staff and visitors. Our core focus areas all center around growing fresh food for the hunger community. We could not continue to do our work without the farming aspect that is truly our overarching theme. When you feed hungry tummies, you also feed souls. Feeding souls heals communities.

The key word to this project is community. Agriculture is the number one industry in the State. What a better way to showcase the significance agriculture plays in any community, not just from an economic impact, but as a way to improve lives.

With a fully finished and equipped Community Agricultural Facility, Farming 4 Hunger will be in a position to develop a strong model that can be replicated around the State, and further. The Community Agricultural Facility is already a place where agricultural education, drug and alcohol prevention, workforce development and investment, and community support takes place. Completing this facility will be an enormous benefit to the community and provide a very positive impact among not only residents, but visitors as well. Imagine facilities such as this throughout the Nation healing communities from the inside out. This Community Agricultural facility will leave a legacy to the Southern Maryland community.
