12 (2) Unless the client consents in writing to the disclosure, a licensee may 13 not disclose confidential information received from or about a client to any other party or 14 licensee acting as the agent of that party or other representative of that party.

15 (3) Unless the client to whom the confidential information relates consents
16 in writing to a disclosure of that confidential information, a licensee who receives
17 confidential information from or about the licensee's own past or present client or a past or 18 present client of the licensee's broker may not disclose that information to:

19 (i) any of the licensee's other clients;

20 (ii) any of the clients of the licensee's broker;

21 (iii) any other party;

22 (iv) any licensee acting as an agent for another party; or

23 (v) any representative of another party.

24 (4) Unless otherwise specified in the brokerage agreement, a licensee is not 25 required to seek additional offers to purchase or lease real estate while the real estate is 26 subject to an existing contract of sale or lease.

27 (5) An intra-company agent may disclose confidential information to the 28 broker or dual agent for whom the intra-company agent works but the broker or dual agent
29 may not disclose that confidential information to the other party or the intra-company
30 agent for the other party, as provided in § 17-530.1(b) of this subtitle.

1 (c) A licensee does not breach any duty or obligation to the client by:
