10. Description and Purpose of Organization (Limit length to visible area)
Maryland Theatre for the Performing Arts(MTPA) provides our Capital Region with national-touring performances of all genres and offers a gateway to large conferences and meetings that typically bypass the Annapolis area. With 71% of MD residents attending performing arts, MTPAs world-class presenting arts and conference center provides enormous social, artistic and much-needed economic impact in the Capital Region. MTPA captures not only the interest of new patrons to the arts but grows existing audiences for all the lively arts; enhancing the potential subscriber base for all existing arts groups in the area. As a presenting theater and conference facility, MTPA increases local spending, local jobs, and serves as a global attraction for the highest level of professional arts.

11. Description and Purpose of Project (Limit length to visible area)

MTPA's LEED 65,000 square-foot performing arts and conference center will be located between Taylor Ave & Park Place in Annapolis, MD. The facility will serve over 2 million Maryland Capital Region residents; public and private school students & teachers; businesses needing conference capabilities; & 6.4million AACo tourists. MTPA expects to hire at minimum 36 FTEs and conduct robust mentoring & internship programs with nationally graded talent operations, marketing/PR, development, house operations, engineering & performance artists. The 1200-seat main theater seating & orchestra pit retracts to provide a level floor for banquet and conference needs. State-of-the-art audiovisual capabilities are planned throughout including the 350-seat secondary presentation hall/flexible theater, main theater, multi-purpose rooms and museum/gallery space. MTPA's economic impact would significantly support restaurants, hotels, retail, and Heritage areas.

28. Comments

MTPA has a vision of cultivating a civic gathering place that inspires, entertains, and encourages intellectual curiosity for all people through a world-class, internationally recognized, state-of-the-art presenting venue. As an organization in support of all arts and arts organizations, MTPA also aims to empower, connect and support a well-prepared next generation of artistic leaders.

MTPA will significantly bolster a sense of place and quality of life in the Maryland Capital Region providing programs that engage the public, support National and Internationally recognized performances in ballet, drama, symphony, opera, Broadway musical theater and much more. It will provide opportunities for cross-sectoral and cross-cultural collaboration, socialization, and enhance a sense of regional and local community.

MTPA will increase the quality of the regional workforce and enhance corporate recruitment. Strong arts and cultural communities rank consistently among the top factors for decision makers when considering relations for employment as they look for a high quality of life. MTPA will positively impact neighborhood and community development. Not only do strong arts communities increase social connectivity and community vibrancy, but a healthy arts community drives overnight traffic to fill hotels, encourage heritage tourism, support restaurants, and local retail and businesses.

Currently, Maryland is one of the only states without a first-class performing arts and conference center in its State Capital, yet it is a leader in the United States for its support of arts.

MTPA enjoys the support of the Mayor of Annapolis Gavin Buckley, Senator Sarah Elfreth, Governor Larry Hogan and First Lady Yumi Hogan and other state, county, and city representatives.

The MTPA organization currently operates as a nonprofit 501c3 with a board of directors and has a fully functioning operation staff with 17 additional volunteers and advisers who have contributed approximately 1800 hours since September 2017 when volunteer tracking began.
