Campaign Finance Entities

A "campaign finance entity" is defined as a political committee established under provisions of the Election Law Article pertaining to campaign finance. An "authorized candidate campaign committee" is a campaign finance entity authorized by the candidate to promote the candidate's candidacy. Unless otherwise expressly authorized by law, all campaign finance activity for an election under the Election Law Article of the Annotated Code must be conducted through a campaign finance entity. An individual may not file a certificate of candidacy or a declaration of intent until the individual establishes, or causes to be established, an authorized candidate campaign committee. Campaign finance entities must have a chairman (which the candidate may be) and treasurer (which the candidate may not be) as responsible officers; must have one or more designated campaign accounts; and are subject to reporting, recordkeeping, and other requirements under the Election Law Article.

The State Board of Elections must assess a late filing fee for a failure to meet specified reporting requirements and may impose a civil penalty for specified campaign finance-related violations. With specified exceptions, a late filing fee or specified civil penalty is paid by the campaign finance entity.
