Analysis

Current Law: A minor has the same capacity as an adult to consent to medical or dental treatment if the minor is (1) married; (2) the parent of a child; or (3) living separate and apart from the minor's parent(s) or guardian and self-supporting.

A minor has the same capacity as an adult to consent to (1) treatment for or advice about venereal disease, pregnancy, contraception other than sterilization, drug abuse, and alcoholism; (2) physical examination and treatment of injuries from, or to obtain evidence of, an alleged rape or sexual offense; and (3) initial medical screening and physical examination on and after admission of the minor into a detention center.

A minor also has the same capacity as an adult to consent to medical treatment if, in the judgment of the attending physician, the life or health of the minor would be affected adversely by a delay of treatment to obtain another individual's consent.

A licensed health care practitioner who treats a minor is not liable for civil damages or subject to any criminal or disciplinary penalty solely because the minor did not have capacity to consent.

Without the consent of or over the express objection of a minor, a licensed health care practitioner is authorized (but not required) to give certain information regarding treatment (except for information about an abortion) to a minor's parent, step parent, guardian, or custodian.
