(ii) whether individuals eligible for relief have an adequate understanding of the process, including an understanding of the differences between a peace order and a protective order;

(2) assess the effectiveness of peace orders and protective orders in protecting individuals, paying special attention to:

(i) the rate of compliance by respondents with peace orders and protective orders;

(ii) the effectiveness of the remedies available to an individual granted a peace order or a protective order when a respondent does not comply with the order; and

(iii) whether the issuance of a peace order or a protective order is effective in preventing the reoccurrence of the conduct that led to the issuance of the order; and

(3) make recommendations regarding potential statutory changes to improve the effectiveness of peace orders and protective orders in the State, paying special attention to whether:

(i) combining peace orders and protective orders into a single process would reduce confusion or increase the effectiveness of an order issued by the court prohibiting contact with an individual; and

(ii) current prohibitions on stalking, assault, and harassment could be better enforced to achieve the results sought by peace orders and protective orders.

(c) In conducting the study, the Department shall solicit input from:
