Background: Generally, “at-large” is the designation for members of a governing body (e.g., a county) who are elected or appointed by the entire jurisdiction. Until 1986, county councils were elected at-large by the entire county, rather than for local representation within a district. Chapters 707 and 708 of 1986, among other things, eliminated the practice of at-large voting for county commissioners and implemented single-member districts. In 1987, a 40,000 pound granite statue was erected in Dorchester County to commemorate the passage of the legislation, which ordered statewide voting equity.
