Analysis

Current Law: Class B and Class H licenses are issued to restaurants and generally only authorize the on-premises consumption of alcohol. In Anne Arundel County, restaurants must operate a kitchen and serve hot meals at least twice each day to qualify for a Class B or Class H license.

The board may issue a dancing permit to a holder of a Class B, Class C, or Class D license. The board may also issue permits to holders of Class BLX and Class H licenses, so long as the premises for which the license has been issued is more than 1,000 feet in a straight line from entry to entry away from a place of worship or school. A dancing permit authorizes its holder to provide music, dancing, and other legal forms of entertainment at the licensed establishment.

The annual fee for a dancing permit is $200 for the holder of a beer and wine license; $400 for the holder of a beer, wine, and liquor license; and no charge for the holder of a Class C license.
