displaying of the Ten Commandments on public property may have “multiple purposes” such as “historical significance” and represents a “common cultural heritage”; and

WHEREAS, Recognizing the historical role of the Ten Commandments accords with our nation’s history and faithfully reflects the understanding of the founders of our nation with respect to the necessity of civic morality to a functional self-government; history records that James Madison, the fourth President of the United States, stated that “[w]e have staked the whole future of our new nation...upon the capacity of each of ourselves to govern ourselves according to the moral principles of the Ten Commandments”; and

WHEREAS, It is the Legislature’s intent to apply the decision set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court in Van Orden v. Perry, to continue the rich tradition and ensure that the citizens of our State may understand and appreciate the foundational documents of our State and national government, and that the placing of a monument to the Ten Commandments on the grounds of the Maryland State House would help the people of the United States and the State of Maryland to recognize the Ten Commandments as the moral foundation of the law; now, therefore,
