Letter: Greetings,

Better Sex Offender Laws to Protect our Children

Did you know that currently the majority of registered sex offenders only have a probationary term of 5 years? Even though many of them are required to be on the registry for 25 years or even their entire lifetime? The Sex Offender Registry is primarily a directory of information, offering minimal actual restrictions. The key to actual monitoring and restrictions is the probation itself.

My ex-husband is a Tier III Registered Sex Offender for the rest of his life, after being convicted of abusing one of my daughters. Since then, he has been caught multiple times sleeping alone with my other two daughters on his "supervised" visits, showing up where he knew we would be, and opening new social media accounts in efforts to secretly communicate with them. All of the detectives and prosecutors and therapists involved with trying to keep my children safe see that he's behaving inappropriately, and agree that he's attempting to groom the next daughter, but there's nothing they can legally do to interfere. We are currently petitioning to have his probation modified, and have conditions added restricting his access to minor children. I believe we will be successful in that attempt, but that only helps for a couple more years. Once his probation runs out, we run out of the ability to have any restrictions on him. Since he has already been proven to be unsafe for children, repeatedly shows clear intent to continue having access to children, and is not following any of the civil boundaries he's been given, it is imperative that the justice system have some way of keeping tabs on this man and continuing to restrict his movements going forward. He does not suddenly become safe in year six. But he does stop being on probation.

According to Darkness to Light, a non-profit organization dedicated to preventing child sexual abuse, about one in ten children will be sexually abused before their 18th birthday. There are an estimated 42 million child sexual abuse survivors currently living in the United States, and as much as we would like to think that the predators are far removed from our families, 90% of child sexual abuse victims knew their abuser. This year, there will be approximately 400,000 babies born in the U.S. that will eventually become victims of child sexual abuse unless we do something to stop it. The problem is much more wide spread than many of us would like to believe, as the statistics are drastically under reported. According to the National Sexual Violence Resource Center, only 12% of child sexual abuse is ever reported to the authorities. The Maryland Coalition Against Sexual Assault reports that 73% of child victims don’t report the abuse for at least one year, with 45% not disclosing for at least five years. Nearly 70% of all reported sexual assaults, including assaults on adults, occur to children ages 17 and under.

We would like to think that we can identify someone who isn't safe, and protect our children from them, but it's not always that easy. Sometimes unsafe people look just like safe people. Sometimes the unsafe people are coaching your kid's soccer team, or at a birthday party at Chuck E Cheese, or sitting next to you in church. Once someone has been identified as unsafe, there should be laws in place to ensure they cannot have the opportunity to offend again. At a minimum, we need the ability to step in when we see an already convicted offender continuing to exhibit unsafe and/or abusive behavior. We lose that ability once the probation expires. Help me keep my children safe. Help me keep YOUR children safe and create boundaries to minimize the opportunity for someone convicted of abusing a child to gain access to your children. Child safety is greater than abuser rights.
