Testimony in Support of
House Bill 831– Maryland Food System Resiliency Council
Environment and Transportation Committee
February 17, 2021

The Rural Maryland Council Supports House Bill 831– Maryland Food System Resiliency Council. The bill will develop the Maryland Food System Resiliency Council that will address the food insecurity issues that have arisen during the COVID-19 pandemic, develop recommendations to increase the long-term resiliency of the food system, and develop by November 1, 2021, a plan to increase the production and procurement of Maryland certified food.

Food insecurity has been a problem across the nation, including the state of Maryland, before the pandemic, with the Maryland Food Bank claiming that up to 1.5 million Marylanders could be food insecure, meaning they do not know where their next meal is coming from. The economic effects of the pandemic have only increased the number of families currently struggling to find their next meal. Since March, 38% of those who received charitable food support from Feeding America Network were new to the program.

HB831 will address the hunger crisis that so many Marylanders are currently facing from no fault of their own. A few of the goals in this bill include addressing the food insecurity caused by COVID19, collecting data across the state to create a map and identify gaps in service, addressing and eliminating racial inequalities in the food system, and addressing and eliminating food deserts. One of the main ways that hunger and food insecurity will be addressed is through the increase of production and procurement of Maryland Certified Foods. By increasing the production and procurement of Maryland foods, it will help the Marylanders who are growing and producing these foods and those who are currently hungry and going without nutritious meals. This would include more local foods in suburban, urban, and rural parts of the state, introducing more local foods to schools, universities and other institutions, and creating more market opportunities for Maryland food businesses.

HB831 intends to address the growing food insecurity issue and to provide Marylanders with access to nutritional meals. The Rural Maryland Council respectfully asks for your favorable report of House Bill 831.
