The Greater Baltimore Committee (GBC) supports Senate Bill 452, which prohibits the court from ordering the appearance of an individual for an examination in aid of enforcement of a money judgment in District Court

Under current law, a lawsuit filed by a creditor for a principal amount that is $5,000 or below is considered a small claim and is heard in District Court, where there are few or no strict rules of evidence applied, and few procedural safeguards.

According to research from the Maryland Consumer Rights Coalition (MCRC), consumer debt collection lawsuits and the resulting judgements are disproportionately carried out in communities-of-color throughout Maryland. From the MCRC 2018 publication No Exit: How Maryland's Debt Collection Practices Deepen Poverty & Widen the Racial Wealth Gap:

“Debtors’ prisons create a two-tiered system of justice: those who can afford to pay a bail or bond do not go to jail, while those who can’t afford to pay remain in jail. The practice creates a vicious cycle of poverty wherein the individual cannot work because they are jailed. They may lose their job, which, of course, makes it far more difficult to repay a debt. Jailing someone for a debt serves no constructive purpose: the individual is not violent, nor are they a danger to the community. They are simply poor, which is not supposed to be a jailable offense in Maryland.”

Senate Bill 452 is consistent with the Greater Baltimore Committee’s organizational focus on advancing racial equity and social justice by considering the disproportionate impact that legislation may have on small and minority owned businesses, minority populations, and economically disadvantaged residents.

For these reasons, the Greater Baltimore Committee urges a favorable report on Senate Bill 452.
