Please do not think that the abortion industry cares about it's clients. The goal is all about money and not to allow the clients to have any second thoughts prior to the completion of an abortion. For almost 5 years, I have stood in front of the Baltimore planned parenthood on Howard Street trying to offer women other alternatives to abortion. I have had many conversations with women who have had unfortunate experiences there. The general procedure is to not show the women the sonogram so that they will not realize that a live and lovable baby is about to be killed. I have heard from women that they often are thinking of procedure rather than baby and it isn't until after the abortion is started or over that the awareness comes to them that a baby is killed, but the regret that comes with this realization will often last a lifetime. I have heard the trembling of voice with the statement," If only someone had been there to tell me that it was a baby, I would not have done it!" Please make sure that women get to see the ultra sound and get a chance to think before being pressured and rushed into an abortion procedure by recommending this bill for passage.
