SUPPORT – SB 786
Health - Reproductive Health Services - Protected Information and Insurance Requirements

Dear Honorable Chair Griffith:

My name is Rosalyn Levy Jonas, and I have been a Maryland resident for nearly 40 years. In 1966, 17 years before I would take up residency in Maryland, I had a difficult and challenging experience here. I was just 20 years old, single, pregnant, and desperate, I stood alone on Eutaw Street in downtown Baltimore, waiting to be picked up by a man I'd never met, whose job it was to deliver me to the place where I was scheduled to have an illegal abortion.

My abortion was performed in a farmhouse somewhere in rural Baltimore County, by a man whose face I never saw. For his services, I paid him $600 in cash, and after a few hours, I was returned to Eutaw Street. I consider myself lucky; the people who transported me, provided my care, and took my money were trustworthy. No record of my care was accessible to anyone who might act in bad faith, and no health complications prevented me from later choosing to bring children into the world. I have two adult daughters whose reproductive rights I am determined to protect. On their behalf and on behalf of the women in this state and across the country, I have served on the boards of state and national organizations tasked with preserving their rights.

I had my abortion seven years before Roe v. Wade gave women the right to control their own reproductive destinies. Seven years before women, desperate to control their bodies and their lives, could stop using coat hangers and knitting needles and stop drinking poison—and stop standing alone on Eutaw Street, hoping to meet a man who was actually a doctor. Seven years before girls and women could stop their search for the underground networks that existed to connect them with abortion providers. And seven years before desperate women had to come up with the cash equivalent of $5,200 today.

Today, abortion patients seeking care in Maryland can find a network of compassionate, qualified abortion care providers, something I was unable to do. But they are faced with the realities of coming up with large sums of money and fearing reprisal for an act considered illegal in twelve states. To ensure the security of abortion care patients and providers—and avoid a return to the reality I had to live in Maryland in 1966—I urge a favorable report on SB 786.

Sincerely,
Rosalyn Levy Jonas
