

I am a physician with an adult child with developmental disabilities.

I worry that someday when I am no longer able to take care of her that someone could convince her that her life is meaningless, that she is a burden to others, and that the world would be better off without her.

As a physician, who is dedicated to healing others, I do not believe that our profession should play any role in purposely ending someone's life during medical assisted suicide.