

Senate Bill 0611 Frederick and Washington Counties – Bow Hunting Openly Carrying Handguns FAVORABLE

Current law provides that a bow hunter may wear and carry a handgun while hunting deer in Region A as a reasonable precaution against black bears. As shown on the map below, Region A is comprised of Garrett and Allegany Counties and the western portion of Washington County. Due to successful conservation practices, the black bear population has increased in Area A and the black bear population has now significantly increased in the remaining portion of Washington County and into Frederick County.

This bill simply extends the area where a bow hunter may carry a handgun to include all of Washington and Frederick Counties.
