

Testimony of the Human Trafficking Prevention Project

BILL NO: House Bill 550
TITLE: Criminal Procedure – Partial Expungement
COMMITTEE: Judiciary
HEARING DATE: March 5, 2024
POSITION: FAVORABLE

House Bill 550 would repeal Maryland’s overly punitive ‘unit rule’ provision by amending the state’s expungement law to allow the expungement of eligible non-conviction charges within a unit of criminal charges. The Human Trafficking Prevention Project supports this bill because it will enhance the effectiveness of Maryland’s expungement framework by providing improved access to criminal record relief for all Marylanders, including sex workers and survivors of human trafficking.

Currently, Maryland’s “unit rule” prohibits the expungement of otherwise eligible charges such as acquittals and other favorable dispositions if any other charge within that same “unit” of criminal charges is ineligible for expungement. This means that many individuals struggle with the collateral consequences of a lengthy criminal record, despite the fact that they may not have been convicted of the majority of the offenses they were charged with. House Bill 550 drastically reduces the electronic visibility of non-convictions, which would increase the probability that people will be hired, receive loans and obtain housing because many employers and others generally only look to the electronic record and do not go to the courthouse to review the paper file. The paper file in the courthouse however, would still list all of the charges and be available for public viewing and/or in a subsequent criminal prosecution.

The collateral consequences of having a criminal record are of particular import to trafficking survivors, as criminal records are both a predictor and the result of exposure to human trafficking. Data recently obtained from a national survey of both sex and labor trafficking survivors echoes the need for access to broader criminal record relief, with 91% of survivors reporting having been arrested at some point in their lives. Of those 91%, over 40% reported being arrested over nine times or more, while over 50% stated that every single arrest on their record was a direct result of their trafficking experience. Like all individuals with a criminal record, criminalized survivors of trafficking similarly struggle to obtain safe housing and gainful employment. For this population however, these consequences carry with them the additional risk of continued exploitation by a trafficker.

In recent years, Maryland has shown its strong support for remedying the impact a deeply flawed criminal legal system has on the ability of its citizens to escape poverty and lead productive lives. HB 550 would further this goal by expanding the availability of expungement in the state, which would significantly lessen the trafficking risk faced by sex workers and survivors of human trafficking alike. For these reasons, the Human Trafficking Prevention Project supports House Bill 550, and respectfully urges a favorable report.

The Human Trafficking Prevention Project is dedicated to ending the criminalization of sex workers, survivors of human trafficking, and those populations put at highest risk of exploitation through access to civil legal services and support for policies that dismantle harmful systems and increase access to basic human rights and legal relief.
