THIS ALSO INCREASE MY MORATAGE as well. Times like now im not a full house. I DONT NEED ANY MORE for years, Maryland could empower child care programs to improve quality and stability. Tax incentives would en able programs to increase employee training, update learning materials to meet evolving developmental needs

, and offset costs for meals, supplies, and equipment. Additionally, these funds could support higher wages abo ve the minimum, helping to retain staff in a field characterized by high stress, low pay, and limited benefits. With out such support, families often face difficult choices, such as relying on substandard care, frequently changing caregivers, or leaving children with older siblings—decisions that may not best serve the child's development. /

Adopting tax incentives could support both child care providers and families, promoting better care options and :

a more stable, qualified workforce.
