Chair Atterbeary, Vice Chair Wilkins, and the members of the Ways and Means Committee,

My name is Elise Berndt and I am writing to express my strong support for Maryland HB1323, which seeks to enhance professional development opportunities for educators by incorporating Asian American history training programs into the state's Continuing Professional Education Development program. This initiative is a crucial step toward ensuring that Maryland's educators have access to high-quality, vetted resources that will enrich the curriculum and provide students with a more inclusive and accurate understanding of American history.

At my middle school in Montgomery County, I have noticed the limited Asian American history incorporated into our curriculum. I have barely learned anything about Asian American heritage, history, culture, etc. Currently, I am in 8th grade. The most recent Asian American history I have learned about in school was in 6th grade and concerned the Chinese Dynasty. Asian American history is just as important to our curriculum as, Native American, African American, US American, etc.

It is vital that our students learn about the past of all of our American people. The teaching of US history is not complete without the inclusion of the Asian Americans that helped build this country into what it is today. Without the inclusion of Asian American studies in school curriculums, Maryland students grow up unknowing of the many contributions that Asian Americans have had on our country, including their involvement with the advancement of Civil Rights. Students also fail to learn about many important historical events, such as the internment of Japanese Americans, the massacre of Chinese immigrants in Los Angeles, and the Chinese Exclusion Act.

Studies show that a diverse and inclusive curriculum leads to higher student engagement, improved academic outcomes, and a greater sense of belonging for students from all backgrounds. By investing in educator training, we can ensure that future generations develop a broader, more accurate understanding of our nation's diverse history.

I respectfully request a favorable report on HB1323. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Thank you,
