My name is Camille Rodriguez, and I am the proud parent of a student at Charles County's first charter school (Phoenix International School of the Arts). I am incredibly grateful to finally have a high-quality charter school option in our community—one that truly supports students academically, socially, and emotionally.

Before my son enrolled here, we struggled to find the right fit for him in the traditional public school system. By the middle of 5th grade, I made the difficult decision to remove him from school entirely and homeschool him so he could get his learning back on track. It was not an easy choice, but it was necessary for his growth.

Everything changed when we found this charter school.

Because of its small school size, my son is finally able to focus on his studies without distractions. The intimate environment allows teachers to really know their students, how they learn, what challenges they face, and what motivates them. For the first time in years, I see my son confident, engaged, and excited to learn.

The leadership team at this school also deserves recognition. They set a strong example for professionalism, compassion, and accountability. They communicate frequently and clearly, and every single time I reach out with a question or concern, I receive a timely and thoughtful response. As a parent, that level of responsiveness gives me peace of mind and reinforces my trust in the school.

This charter school has been a blessing for my family. It has provided my son with stability, personalized instruction, and a safe environment where he can thrive. I am thankful that Charles County finally has a charter school option—and even more thankful that it is one committed to excellence.

I strongly support this school, and I believe it is an essential part of expanding high-quality educational opportunities for families in our community.
