

HB152 Consumer Protection-Electronic Funds Transfers-Regulations Position: Favorable

February 10, 2026

The Honorable Kris Valderrama, Chair
Economic Matters Committee
Room 230, House Office Building
Annapolis, Maryland 21401
cc: Members, House Economic Matters

Chair Valderrama and Members of the Committee:

As a part of our work, Economic Action's Securing Older Adult Resources program, or SOAR, works with older adults across the state to assist them in securing financial resources and provide educational tools for financial security and safety. Although in theory it is easy to teach older adults about the warning signs of online crypto scams, scammers are constantly changing their strategy and modernizing their techniques, making it difficult to keep up. Now, in the era of artificial intelligence and deep fakes, where a scammer can copy a loved-ones voice and use it to ask for money over the phone, it is important to ensure that older adults are protected from multiple angles, through education and through law.

According to the FTC, Americans lost $343.7 million in 2023 on wire transfer fraud alone.<sup>1</sup> Most other types of electronic transfer are covered under the federal Electronic Funds Transfers Act (EFTA), which includes a private right of action against the banks, this allows fraud victims to sue their bank for not questioning/stopping the transaction. Because wire transfers are not currently covered by EFTA, victims of wire fraud can only get their money back if they can track down the scammer, which is a long process that is often fruitless, especially if that money has already been spent. This process also makes it difficult for older adults without the resources or ability to go after the scammer themselves. Banks have an obligation to protect their customers. HB152 would protect victims of wire fraud by holding banks adequately liable for the fraud and would create a private right of action for victims to sue their banks. This would ensure that banks are vigilant when it comes to wire transfers, hopefully preventing more of this fraud from occurring in the future.

For these reasons, we urge your favorable report on HB152

Best,

Marceline White
Executive Director
